FORTY-THIRD YEAR. LINCOLN, NEBRASKA, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 30, 1924. TWO CENTS.

REPUDIATES LEASES

WON'T MODIFY WALSH BILL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The senate today went on record in repudiation of the naval oil reserve leases.

A Lenroot amendment to the Walsh resolution which would have toned down the accusation that the leases were illegally entered into was defeated.

The vote was forty-six to thirty-eight.

Progressive republicans voted with the democrats to repudiate the leases and declare them unlawful.

The Walsh resolution declared the leases already made "under circumstances indicating fraud and corruption." This clause now stands.

Lenroot, Wisconsin, chairman of the investigating committee, asked passgae of the amendment stating the leases were "executed under circumstances giving rise to questions of legality." This was defeated.

Amon gthe republicans who voted against the Lenroot amendment were Senators Brookhart, Frazier, Johnson of California, Ladd, Norbeck and Norris.

Senators Magnus Johnson, and Hncrik Shipstead of Minnesota, both farmer-laborites, also voted against the resolution.

Senator Sterling then offered an amendment changing the wording of the Walsh resolution to read that the contracts wer eentered into without "apparent" authority instead of "without authority."

The Sterling resolution then was also voted down 47 to 37 with the line up about the same

Senator Howell, republican national committee man of Nebraska, voted against the Lenroot amendment but voted for the Sterling amendment.

Howell Predicts Leases Cancelled

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Cancellation for the national reserve oil leases and return of the oil lands to the government are imminent, Senator R. B. Howell stated today.

"I sincerely trust that the result will be that these oil resources be returned to the government at once," he said.

"There seems to be a general impression in congress that these leases were made without adequate authority, and that on this ground alone cancellation will be upheld.

"Of course, a contract gain with fraud cannot be enforced and, it would appear from revelations thus far that cancellation would probably be upheld on this ground also.

"I have no doubt that the faction of the navy department and its officials have been actuated by what they felt was the best of motives.

"However, the situation suggests that these officials may be subject to serious criticism on the ground of assumption of greater authority than it was the intention of congress to convey."

COUNTY KICKS ON ASSESSMENT

Says Shouldn't Exceed Drainage District Benefits.

The county of Scottsbluff is appealing in supreme court from a judgment of the district court to the effect that it would have to pay a considerable sum to the Scottsbluff Drainage district for benefits to highways. The principal question at issue is whether the county should pay what was assessed against it or whether the assessment could exceed the benefits. The county claims that it ought to pay only about 1.71 per cent of the total cost instead of the 13.08 assessed against it on the ground that no assessment can exceed benefits conferred by an improvement.

Surtax Compromise Seems to Approach

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30—A compromise on surtaxes—the key that will open the door to tax reduction—was near today.

House republicans and democrats have been gradually ironing out their differences, until they appear to have agreed on 35 per cent as a basis for compromise

When the showdown comes committee members expect the first test will come on the Mellon maximum rates of 25 per cent. Even the strongest supporters of the Mellon plan do not expect to muster more than seven votes for the low rate.

Three Jap Planes Collide in Midair

TOKIO, Jan. 30.—Three Japanese navy airplanes collided in midair above the Kasumigaura aviation field Tuesday. Two crashed at once, their occupants being killed but the pilot of the third plane managed to make a safe landing on the bay.

This is believed to be the first time that three heavier than air machines have been in one collision in midair.

LEWIS SCORES NEW VICTORY

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 30.—President John L. Lewis scored another victory in the United Mine Workers convention here today when constitutional amendment seeking to limit the appointive power of the international president failed to pass on a roll call vote.

The vote was 2,263 against the resolution, 2,106 in its favor, giving the administration a majority of 157.

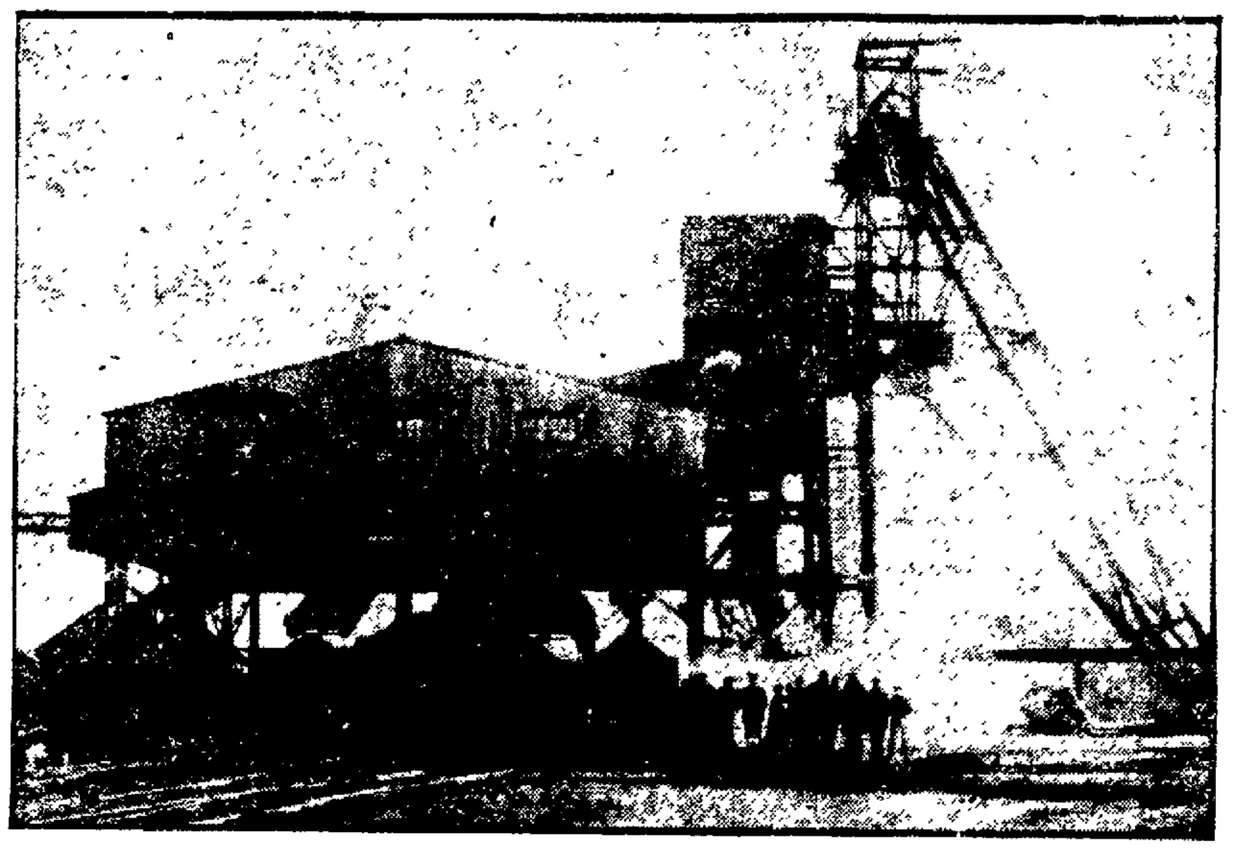

The proposed amendment sought to make international organizers elective positions instead of appointive.

YOUNG COUPLE TAKES ROAD

Reach Columbus, Broke, in Course of Hike From Denver Toward Council Bluffs.

COLUMBUS, Neb., Jan. 30.—"Dead broke," looking for a job in every town they passed as they walked from Kearney to Columbus, a young married couple who spent the night trying to sleep in the Union Pacific passenger depot here, attracted police attention this morning. They were taken to the police station. At first officers thought they might be an eloping couple. Investigation showed, however, that they were married, they carried their marriage certificate with them. They were married two years ago in Ded Oak, Ia.,

Theirs was a story of hardship, yet they were not in the least dismayed. Just trying to make their way to Council Bluffs or Red Oak to get jobs. When married two years ago they decided to go to Denver. He lost his job in Denver. Mr. and Mrs. Pape walked to Grand Island. Arriving there they found they had only 25 cents between them. When they arrived at Columbus last night they were out of funds. This morning having gone for forty-eight hours without food and walked sixty-two miles since eating last, the young couple were taken to the police station. The chief of police gave them an order to a hotel for a meal on the municipal charity fund, and the fare to Council Bluffs.

Hospital Patients Out Thru Window

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 30.—Fire broke out in Johns Hopkins hospital today, spreading so rapidly that two doctors about to operate on two patients were forced to move them thru a window.

Smoke poured thru the wards after the flames had attacked inflammable material in a store room beneath the operating room.

"Physicians and nurses stuck to their posts quieting patients and preventing a panic. Two men were slightly burned.

Daugherty Enjoys Self in Florida

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 30.—Attorney General Daugherty was too busy enjoying himself to be bothered about demands in congress for his resignation.

"That business of the Teapot Dome doesn't worry me in the least," said Daugherty who was lounging in a hotel lobby. "If it did, I would have remained in Washington. I came here to play

"I do not care to make any statements—there is no necessity for one. I am never on the defensive."

Benedict Crowell Ordered Released

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30—Benedict Crowell of Cleveland, assistant secretary of war in the Wilson cabinet, charged with conspiracy to defraud in awarding of army cantonment contracts was released from possession today in the District of Columbia criminal court. In a lengthy opinion, Justice Hoehling held that "the indictment drawn is not such as that the defendant could adequately plead thereto in the sense of knowing just what he is called upon to answer."

It is expected the government will appeal

Tennessee Bank Is Robbed of $10,000

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Jan. 30.—Two men robbed the Farmers' bank of Jasper, Tenn., of $10,000 today after holding up the cashier. Two suspects were arrested in Whitwell

MAKES ATTACK ON SOCIAL SET

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Washington's lively social set today was gasping from the sting of the second bitter indictment hurled at it in twenty-four hours.

First, W. P. G. Harding, former head of the federal reserve board blamed the suicide of his beautiful daughter, Margaret, to the nerve shattering social pace and the cigaret smoking of Washington. On the heels of this, Dr. V. Sokolowski, retiring member of the Polish legation staff, flung over his shoulder as he departed from Washington this barbed farewell:

"I go back to my country with a disgust for social drinking that I cannot put into words."

Representative Upshaw who has been leading a fight against drinking in Washington official circles, saw Dr. Sokolowski off at the station, commended him as a "high-toned gentleman," and gave him a letter declaring that he was convinced Sokolowski was simply the "victim of that custom of official and social 'looseness' on the liquor question."

It was in responding to this letter that Sokolowski expressed his disgust, and declared he was going home a total abstainer.

"I have seen so many high officials in Washington drink the liquor that their government has outlawed, and secure liquor from each other, what could I do if I wished to be congenial and a good entertainer, if I did not fall into their customs?" he asked.

The social set disagreed with the statement of Harding in Boston that too much society brought on the death of Miss Harding. They prefer to believe the story of a blasted romance.

Love, Not Money, Brought Him Home

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 30.—Love for his wife, not the fact that she had inherited $100,000 recently, brought Leo Lesser, former Memphis capitalist, home. He had been a fugitive from justice for ten years.

"Did you know your wife had inherited $100,000 recently?" Lesser was asked today.

"Sir, I am surprised at you," Lesser replied. "I am in love with my wife."

Lesser visited his wife at Senatobia, Miss., last night. Friends said they are reconciled. He left her this morning. She is ill with the flu.

Lesser had been peeling potatoes in Los Angeles for a living.

"How does it feel to drop from millions to peeling spuds?" he was asked.

"Boy, it's hell," was the reply.

"Dora is a fine little woman," said Lesser, speaking of his wife. "I hope she takes me back. I do not know what I shall do in the future. That's up to my wife."

Lesser is in Memphis today hiding at the home of relatives.

Criminal action against him is regarded as unlikely. Charges against him here were nolle prossed a year ago. The charges were alleged frauds amounting to $500,000. The same action was taken in Mississippi yesterday when he appeared at Tunica.

WANTED SUICIDE'S PROPERTY

Father's Suit Against Administrator Is Turned Down.

Briefs have been filed in supreme court in support of the judgment of the lower court that gave the administrator of Albert Sindelar possession of property claimed by his father. The younger Sindelar committed suicide in 1922, and the father is seeking recovery of property handed over to him when the old folks left the farm to Sindelar and his young bride. The evidence on behalf of the administrator was given by neighbors who said they had repeatedly heard the old folks say that everything was to go to Albert and that they were going to town to live. The young man had bought the farm of his property, and ownership of the personality is at issue.

Round World Flight Starts From West

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The around-the-world flight of the army air service will start from Los Angeles instead of from Washington D. C. or Seattle, Wash., as originally planned, Major General Patrick, chief of the army air service, announced today.

This decision was reached because the Douglas World cruiser airplanes to be used in the flight now are at Cloverfield, about fifteen miles from Los Angeles.

Currie May Become Envoy to America

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 30.—It is reported here in reliable quarters that Sir Arthur Currie, commander of the Canadian expeditionary forces in the great war and at present principal of McGill university, Montreal, will be appointed Canadian ambassador at Washington.

According to the reports here today the appointment of Currie has been considered by the cabinet and Sir Arthur asked for his views. The ministers are awaiting word from Montreal before making the announcement.

Theodore Roberts Suffers Relapse

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 30.—Theodore Roberts, actor, who has been ill for several months at a local hotel, suffered a relapse today and is reported in a serious condition. He was supposed to be recovering and had been booked for an engagement here starting February 11.

MOTOR CARS INCREASE.

CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—Passenger cars and motor trucks produced in 1923 totalled 4,002,555 compared with 2,570,958 in 1922, an increase of 55.7 per cent, the seventh federal reserve bank here stated today. Passenger car production totalled 3,637,245, an increase of 55.9 per cent over the

An Airproof Alibi.

American Legion Weekly: "Want to join the Legion, buddy?" asked a Legionnaire of a husky young man of about his own age.

"Can't, wasn't in the service."

"Why weren't you?" the veteran demanded.

"My intentions were good," was the rather reluctant explanation. "I went to a recruiting office where they put me in a room and told me to take off my clothes. A doctor walked up to me, looked at me kinda hard, an' then thumped me on the chest. I wasn't in the habit of letting strangers get rough with me, so I thumped his chest—an' I didn't get out of the hospital until the war was over."

TALK ON LABOR MOVEMENT

Professor Taylor Tells Students Human Rights Come First and Property Rights Second.

"It is said that students don't think, they merely absorb," declared Prof. Alva W. Taylor of Indianapolis Wednesday noon at the Grand hotel in an address before the World Forum group "I am endeavoring to challenge thought in students in relation to some of the fundamentals in the labor movement," he said

Professor Taylor spoke of the advance in sentiment towards labor in England which made it possible for the labor party to come into power with the entire acquiescence of either classes. When in England two years ago he had met the new premier, Philip Snowden and others now in the cabinet and was impressed with their ability. He had been assured then by an Englishman that no party had more patriotic or more capable leaders than the laborites. Lloyd George was quoted as having said that the United States is fifty years behind England in its attitude towards labor This was explained by the fact that industrial problems are more vital in England where the common need draws the people together, than in the United States where a man has greater choice of occupations.

The problems of labor were reviewed from the days of the Roman empire when slaves or bond servants had no legal rights. In later years with the feudal system in England and elsewhere, man had bodily freedom, but was tied to the land. With the disappearance of slavery, came the growth of servantage. As late as 1901 in England the ballot was fixed on the basis of property possessions. Professor Taylor said that the fundamentals of the labor movement rest on the recognition of equal rights for the man without property with property owners. Human rights come first and property rights second altho neither class can exist without the other.

Cold Legal Minds To Enter Probe

By Lawrence Martin.
(Copyright, 1924, by United Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Two of the most dispassionately legal minds in the country will now begin applying the law's cold and inexorable logic to the task of cleaning up the Teapot Dome naval oil lease scandal. By temperament and training, Thomas W. Gregory of Texas, and Silas H. Strawn of Illinois the special counsel selected by President Coolidge, are well fitted for this effort.

This does not mean that they will succeed in cancelling the leases given Doheny and Sinclair, or will land behind prison bars any of these concerned in the tangled deals growing out of the leasing. That, tho it looks like a relatively simple task, in view of the sensational evidence disclosed, by the senate committee, is reall ya tremendously difficult legal problem, expert lawyers say.

The senate committee has disclosed certain facts. These have stirred up much righteous indignation and a nationwide demand for drestic action. Strawn and Gregory must now take these facts, then take the law and find out whether the laws is applicable to the facts. If it is their job is to appl yit.

America Now Third In Olympic Standing

CHAMONIX, France, Jan. 30.—America stood third among the nations competing in the Olympic winter sports at the end of today's program.

Norway led with 71 1-2 points and was followed by Finland with 67 1-2. United States 19. England 14. France 11. Switzerland and Austria 10. Seden 9. Czecho-Slovakia 3, Canada 1.

Canada won her third hockey game today and made such an impressive showing that the critics feel that nothing but a miracle can stop the Canadians from winning the championship. The American hockey team won its second start of the championship series.

Americans Win In Second Hockey Game

CHAMOIX, France, Jan. 30.—The American hockey team, making its second start in the Olympic championship matches, defeated France, 22 to 0 here Wednesday

The Americans had an easy time in winning, but they failed to show form comparable with the fine Canadian team

The Americans outplayed the French thruout the entire game Led by the speedy Drury, the Americans scored twelve goals in the first period and fairly swept the French off their feet

Secret Session of Military Committee

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The house military affairs committee went into executive session today to decide upon a report to the house on the disposition of Muscle Shoals

When the committee recessed its hearings members said little progress had been made reaching a decision. The executive session was continued thru the afternoon but it was not excepted that a report would be agreed upon today

BEAUTY TELLS OF ASA CANDLER

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 30.—Details of the wooing of Mrs. Onezima De Bouchel, New Orleans beauty, by Asa G. Candler, millionaire, seventy-three-year-old soft drink manufacturer, were related to a jury in federal court today by attorneys for the woman in her suit for $500,000 heart balm

Even wedding invitations were printed, the attorneys said in their statement to the jury, when Mrs. De Bouchel received a letter from Candler saying he had been advised she had invited men to her room in a hotel here during a confederate reunion.

Attorneys for Candler said they would prove Mrs. De Bouchel was married to Adolphe Rocquet at the time she became engaged to the aged millionaire. This marriage ceremony was performed in 1902 they declared and was never annulled. They said source of information regarding alleged misconduct of Mrs. De Bouchel would not be revealed

Mrs. De Bouchel, a daughter of the old Bourbon house and a leader in New Orleans society, arrived in Atlanta yesterday and after a conference with her attorneys, announced she was ready for the trial

The legal staff of the aged multimillionaire Candler also said they were ready to proceed

Candler, seventy three years old later married Miss May Regan twenty-eight year old stenographer

Mrs. De Bouchel, strikingly attractive in a long moleskin coat which nearly reached the floor, entered the room thru a side door She was accompanied by her attorneys and took a place at the counsel table

BIG ICE CROP AT WYMORE

Best Harvest in Twenty Years Done in Two Weeks by Aid of Night Work.

WYMORE, Neb., Jan. 30.—M. L. Rawlings, Wymore ice wholesaler, today completed the storing of one of the best ice crops ever hardled by him in the twenty years he has been in the business. The ice is clear and ten to twelve inches thick, and was harvested from Indian creek, which runs thru the south edge of Wymore The harvest commenced two weeks ago and has been kept up continually each day and until 10 o'clock each night, the field being equipped with the latest electric machinery and all electric lighted. Rawlings has filled a contract for the Burlington railway for 5,000 tons, and has filled his own storage houses containing 30,000 tons, in that time. He has the largest storage of any dealer in southeastern Nebraska, and is located on the Burlington tracks, hundreds of carloads being shipped to St. Joseph and Kansas City and local points during the summer months.

MILLION DOZEN EGGS FROM FAIRBURY ALONE

FAIRBURY, Neb., Jan. 30.—Figures have been compiled showing that nearly 1,250,000 dozen eggs were shipped from Fairbury in 1923 The average price of these eggs to the producers is about 25c per dozen, making $425,000 which the farmers received in all the year as egg money. Fairbury is a wholesale distributing point for eggs and poultry, and these eggs are produced mostly within a radius of twenty-five to thirty-five miles from Fairbury. About 750,000 pounds of poultry was shipped in 1923, worth $115,000.00.

Greer Fails To Appear for Case

Los Angeles, Jan. 30.—Failure of Horace A. Greer, chauffeur to Mabel Normand, to appear today when his case on charges of shooting Courtland S. Dines, resulted in recess of court until afternoon.

Attorneys for Greer said they believed he misunderstood the time set for the hearing. Prosecutors fought any further delay.

Separatist Leader Reported Killed

BERLIN, Jan. 30.—The Palatinate separatist leader, Herr Gumbinger, was shot and killed today, a dispatch from Roxheim says.

SON LOYAL TO MRS. LELAND

CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—Unswerving love and loyalty were sworn in court here today by Harold Leland for his mother, Mrs. Charlotte Leland, who confessed intimacies with Rev. Carl D. Case, pastor of the First Baptist church of Oak Park.

The seveneten-year-old boy took the stand in the divorce suit and told of his part in the drama. When he learned of his mother's charges, he confronted Rev. Case and Mrs Case in the pastor's study and demanded justice, Harold said.

Rev. Mr. Case said it "was a terrible accident," and begged Harold to keep the matter quiet, the witness testified. Rev. Mr. Case did not deny the charges, Harold testified.

Harold said he was sure of two calls made at his home by the pastor when Mrs. Leland was alone.

"Has this unfortunate affair made any difference in your love for your mother?" the attorneys asked him

"No, it hasn't and never will," Harold replied with spirit. "I will love her always."

Final arguments will be heard tomorrow afternoon

Albert Leland, the father, testifying in rebuttal, said that Rev. Mr. Case gave him a book entitled "Sex Worship" and recommended it as "interesting reading."

LENIN'S WIFE MARTYR TO HIS AMBITIONS

Mme Nikolai Lenin, widow of the Russian Soviet leader, is called a martyr by the Russian people. She has enjoyed none of the glory but all the hardships of her husband. She exposed herself to all the perils that beset him and was herself indefatigable in working for the Soviet, giving hours daily to working out plans for her husband and long hours to nursing him

Germany Decides to Release Bergdoll Kidnaper.

STATE DEPARTMENT NOTIFIED

Had Served All But Six Months of Term.

Other Foreigners Concerned in the Attempt to Be Freed by Berlin Following Agitation.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Corliss Hooven Griffis, former American army lieutenant, who was jailed in Germany following his attempt to kidnap Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, Philadelphia draft dodger, has been unconditionally released, the state department was officially advised today.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30—Germany has decided to pardon and release from prison former Lieut. Corliess Hooven Griffis, of Ohio and the other foreigners who some time ago attempted to kidnap Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, Philadelphia draft dodger, it was learned here today in authoritative quarters.

The release of Griffis which has been the subject of considerable agitation in this country, is expected to take place any day.

According to authoritative information here, an agreement has been reached between President Ebert and the president of Baden for the pardon

Griffis was sentenced to twenty-one months in jail in Mossbach, Baden. He still has about six months to serve.

BADEN, Germany, Jan. 30.—(2 p. m.)—Lieut. Corliss Hooven Griffis, held for the attempted kidnaping of Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, has not been pardoned, the minister of justice stated this afternoon.

The foreign office at Berlin said that if and when the pardoning of Lieutenant Griffis occurs—"It will not be due to any newspaper. but merely to the merits of the case."

NEW WORK BEING PLANNED

Western Railroads Make a Show of 1924 Activity.

Recent issues of railroad publications show that considerable building activity is planned for the coming season by western lines. The Great Northern and Northern Pacific will begin the work of track elevation at Minneapolis, where about three miles of track will be elevated at a cost of five million dollars. The Great Northern has let a contract for the construction of seven miles of second track in Montana. The Missouri Pacific is planning to build a line 125 miles long from Bagnell to Springfield, in Missouri. Union Pacific companies on the north coast are planning several short connecting lines. The Burlington has under construction eleven miles of reconstruction work in Wyoming. Colorado & Southern interests are planning an entrance into Oklahoma, crossing the Red river from its line thru Texas.

ENDORSE MEMORIAL FOR SPANISH VETS

Spanish-American war veterans of Nebraska are to have a memorial dedicated to them in Antelope park This was assured Wednesday when the chamber of commerce directors, at a special meeting for that purpose, endorsed the plan submitted a week ago by a subcommittee of the city planning subdivision. Members of this committee were:

[illegible]

The plan worked out by this group provides for immediate arrangements to call for submission of designs by sculptors or other artists. The chamber of commerce will see that this preliminal expense is taken care of and after the design is chosen a general drive for funds will be instituted, under the direction of a committee from the chamber.

A memorial site was chosen some years ago and several trophies obtained by the government to adorn it. The subdivision has already viewed some tentative designs, but plenty of time and care will be given the phase of the matter.

HOW LARGE IS COUNTY?

DODGE DENIZENS BRING QUARREL INTO HIGH COURT.

Taxpayers Insist County Board Has No Power to Raise Salaries by Raising Population Limit.

William Koyen, who represents the Farmers' Union and other taxpayers of Dodge county in an effort to prevent a raise in the salaries of all county officers by the device of declaring there has been an increase in population, filed an appeal in supreme court Wednesday.

The district court decided that it had no jurisdiction of the matter because the objectors had not pursued the right legal remedy. They took an appeal from the action of the county board in raising the population limit and the salaries of officers. The court said that they should have brought the case into court for review on a petition in error.

The objectors are not the less resentful because they feel they were trapped. The county board and the county officials answered in due form, and then after the time for filing a petition in error had passed they withdrew their answer, and moved to dismiss because the wrong method had been pursued to bring it to the attention of the court. One of the grounds of appeal is that the court erred in permitting this to be done and then sustaining the motion to dismiss.

County salaries in Nebraska are classified on the basis of population. The census of 1920 gave Dodge county 23,197 population. Its officials were paid on the basis of having less than 25,000 population. The board held a hearing, decided that the census was incomplete and inaccurate and on the basis of an increase in school population of 1061, declared the county had more than 27,000 population, and as this brought the county past the 25,000 bar, elevated salaries accordingly.

It is contended by the objectors that the board was without power to determine the population or fix salaries thereunder, while the other side says that all the legal effect of the census bureau figures is that there were no less than 23,197 persons in the county at the time of the enumeration

CONE HERE TO INQUIRE

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE FOR SENATOR ARRIVES.

Hopes That He Will Have No Opposition, But Governor Bryan Says That Cannot Be.

Trenmor Cone, gravel magnate of Omaha, arrived in Lincoln Wednesday and called at the capitol to inquire into a little personal matter.

"How does it happen that the impression has gone abroad that there is a vacancy on the primary ticket right under the division labeled 'United States senator, vote for one?' Don't I count? Didn't I pay my good $50 and file as a democratic candidate for senator? I surely did. The fact is I am the only democratic candidate for senator. I have no opposition, and I hope this situation may continue to the end."

"I just came from Washington and it was my pleasure to sit in the senate gallery. The people of the west have no idea how undemocratic the atmosphere about the senate is. I was listening to Senator Walsh of Massachusetts expound the democratic Bible and I was so interested that I got out my book and pencil, but a sergeant at arms told me I could not take notes there. I leaned wearily over the railing and slouched down as a fat man will, and the same sergeant informed me I could not do that. I had to sit up straight. Three times the sergeant at arms caught me with an unlighted cigar between my fingers and told me it was against the rules and regulations The elevator man refused to stop for me on the second floor when I went to find Senator Howell's office. He scooted right past that floor and down to the bottom again and when I remonstrated he said senators must be served first. 'Is that so?' said I, 'Well, let me off and I will walk.' So I got out."

Governor Bryan has not yet placed his stamp of approval upon a man to run for senator on the democratic ticket, but he said Wednesday there will be a candidate and that no one need worry over the present dearth of aspirants.

"Speaking of conservation," said Mr. Cone, "I would conserve local self government to local control rather than to commission government at Washington. Matching dollars with the government is betting both dollars won't buy as much as the local authorities could get for sixty cents.

"I would conserve our money more and more out of the hands of the drones and into the hands of the working bess of this national hive.

"I would conserve our foods and other products orderly to market thru dotting this nation with warehouses, that our producers could finance themselves with their own warehouse receipts rather than asking financial charity.

"I would conserve our transportation facilities (the greatest problem confronting us today) to the two purposes for which created, namely: the best possible service at reasonable rates of return.

"I would conserve respect for our government by cutting out the rotten, the waste, and the unnecessary in it."

Mrs Allen A Leonard

Mrs. Allen A. Leonard, sixty-five years old, of Wallingford, Vt., is accused of shooting to death her husband, a deputy sheriff. She was found unconscious beside his body. She does not know that he is dead and cries to go home to him.

DOHENY ASKS TO TESTIFY

Appears Unexpectedly at Senate Office Building and Wants to Be Heard.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—E. L. Doheny appeared unexpectedly at the senate office building shortly before noon today and asked permission to be heard by the naval oil lease investigating committee.

While Doheny declined to give the reason for his appearance, it was understood he intends to present Fall's note for the $100,000 loans he made the former secretary.

FRED HANSEN BOUND OVER

ALLEGED ASSAILANT OF GIRL TO BE TRIED.

Waives Preliminary in Justice Hawes' Court and Is Released on Father's Bond.

Fred Hansen who is charged with assault with intention to inflict great bodily injury, on the person of Ellen Clegg, twenty-one year old stenographer, at 419 North Twenty-seventh, at 2:30 the morning of January 22, waived preliminary and was bound over to the district court. The $500 bound furnished by his father was renewed.

Hansen pled not guilty when before the court last Friday, and his case was continued. He is alleged to have been infatuated with the girl and in an upset state of mind because of her indifference when the supposed assault took place. Miss Clegg was scratched and bruised about the face and neck and suffered a severe nerve shock. Hansen also sustained several bad scratches, supposedly from the fray. He lives at 421 North Twenty seventh, next door to where Miss Clegg was staying and is twenty-nine years old.

NAVY PLANS STATIONS

Oil Storage Establishments Costing $5,000,000 Revealed by Rear Admiral.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Rear Admiral Gregory appearing before the house naval affairs committee today revealed that the navy department is now working on a construction program providing for the erection of series of oil storage stations at a cost of $50,000,000. These funds comef rom royalties on the Sinclair-Teapot Dome and Doheny-California oil leases.

WILL HOLD INITIATION.

Phi Lambda Upsilon, national honorary chemical society, will hold its annual initiation January 31 at the University club The initiation will be followed by a banquet. The following men will be initiated. Dr. F. W. Upson, Dr. D. J. Brown, Dr. T. J Frankforter, all of the department of chemistry of the University of Nebraska. Other initiates are Prof. J. H. Moss of Colner college, and graduate students, Carroll Diller Elton Pinckney and James Dorsey

REFERENDUM IS BARRED

STUDENTS WILL NOT VOTE ON VOLSTEAD ACT.

Regents Favor More Rigorous Enforcement of Prohibition Amendment, According to Chancellor Avery.

"No referendum on prohibition such as held in some eastern schools can be taken in this university." Chancellor Avery states thru The Daily Nebraskan Wednesday in response to a student editorial in regard to a proposed referendum such as Princeton, Harvard, Yale, and other eastern institutions not under state management have taken up. Says the chancellor:

"Inasmuch as the regents, who constitute supreme authority under the state constitution and laws, have decided that the internal policy of the university answers question number three in the affirmative—more rigorous inforcement of the prohibition amendment and the Volstead act to make prohibition an actuality are favored.

"Furthermore, the regents have recently specifically directed the executive officers of the university to co-operate with the federal, state and city law enforcement officers, and with the moral forces of the city, in vigorous enforcement of the prohibition amendment and the Volstead act in so far as the university is concerned.

"Though it is my belief that a referendum on number three would be overwhelmingly in the affirmative the university cannot with propriety permit a referendum to be taken involving a subject on which its own governing board has spoken definitely and authoritatively."

Aside from the regents' recent action, the chancellor pointed out that all good citizens should uphold law enforcement. A conscious determination either to evade or to wink at the evasion of any law places one in the position of a conspirator to overthrow the law. To raise the question propounded in question number three is as preposterous as it would be to suggest for debate whether we shall enforce the speed laws or the law against larceny.

"It is possible that some other schools have permitted a referendum among their students as to whether or not they favor upholding the constitution of the United States and the enforcement of law. Such a proposal however, in the University of Nebraska is preposterous"

TEMPLE TO BE ENLARGED

Two Stories to Be Added Over Cafeteria to Give More Space for University Activities.

Plans are being considered at the University of Nebraska for the addition of two stories to the Temple, over the central court-like space on the east side. The roof over the cafeteria in the basement will be raised to the full height of the building. At present a vacant space of ground exists back of the lobby entered from the west. The building will be built out even in the center with the theater on the south and the Y. M. C. A. rooms on the north. The additional space on the entrance floor will be available for cafeteria use, and the upper floor for the dramatic department or other needs. The work will be done the coming summer.

WAHOO ELEVATOR SAFE IS BLOWN

Charge of Nitro Wrecks Cafe and Yeggs Escape the Scene in an Automobile With $15.

WAHOO, Neb., Jan. 30.—Yeggmen early today entered the grain elevator here, wrecked the safe with a charge of nitroglycerine and escaped with $15. The charge was so strong it completely demolished the safe. The yeggs were seen to leave the scene in an automobile

THE WEATHER.

For Lincoln and vicinity: Fair and continued warm tonight and Thursday. The minimum temperature tonight will be near 32 degrees.

For Nebraska: Fair and cold tonight probably Thursday, warmer in the northwestern part.

KILLS HERSELF

P. & A.

Miss Margaret Harding.

W. P. G. Harding, governor of the Federal Reserve bank of Boston, in a statement admitted his daughter, Margaret Elliot, who was found dead at their home last Saturday, committed suicide by shooting herself with his revolver.

Miss Harding, her father said, left notes addressed to him, to relatives and to friends. In the note to her father the young woman asked forgiveness "for what she had done and was about to do." "I couldn't stand life any longer," was one phase of the note, Mr. Harding said.

HIGHER WAGE RATE SOUGHT

TRAINMEN ON WESTERN ROADS SEEK MORE MONEY.

Conference With Executives of the Roads West of Chicago Has Been Requested by Brotherhood Men.

Brotherhood members in the train service of western railroads are seeking a conference with railway executives of lines west of Chicago with the object of presenting for consideration a request for a new schedule that will involve an increase in the wage scale and changes in working rules. Just when this conference will be held has not been decided upon, according to word reaching Lincoln.

It is understood that in some instances B. of R. T. and O. R. C. representatives asked for conferences with system officials of some of the lines west, and that before these could be arranged that representatives of the national organizations of these brotherhoods asked for a general conference including in its scope consideration of the schedules on the lines west of Chicago.

The brotherhood of locomotive engineers has been making system contracts for its men and word has come down from its high officials that regardless of the result of the effort to make system contracts the brotherhood will not go to the labor board with its grievances. Recently the brotherhood renewed its contract with the Rock Island and with some smaller roads where no increase in pay was asked for.

CONFIDENCE IN COOLIDGE

Clark Jeary Says It Is the One Outstanding Impression He Gained at Washington.

Clark Jeary, home from a business trip to Washington, says that the one outstanding impression he received was that people who are close to President Coolidge in a geographical way have unlimited confidence in him and in his ability to do always the right thing People in Washington, he says, apparently assume without argument that the president will properly handle the oil land lease situation.

He said that Washington has found some amusement in the attempt, presumably for political gain, to shower congress with motions He expressed the belief that some of these motions which receive publicity were not heard by more than a dozen members

Mr Jeary, twice a member of the Lancaster delegation in the Nebraska house, has been mentioned as a possible candidate from the Thirty-fifth district

WHAT DO YOU THINK OF IT?

Five Persons Picked at Random Are Asked a Question.

The Question.

Was Elmer E Henkle justified in resigning from the board of education?

N. Z. Snell, former president of the board of education: "Mr Henkle was not justified in doing anything of the kind, but his resignation is the best thing that could happen for the city schools. He was always an obstructionist and never worked with other people. School matters will now be able to move along satisfactorily."

Mrs. E. L. Hinman, former president of the school board: "Precedent does not justify Mr. Henkle. The vote of the majority of the board has frequently in the past gone against the judgment of the president. In locating the senior high school, one of the most important matters that has come up in school history, the final vote was contrary to the judgment of W. H. Ferguson, then president of the board. Mr. Ferguson did not resign, altho he was firm in the opinion that the proposed site of the big school was most unsuitable. The action of the majority in that case has since been vindicated by public opinion."

Mrs. Mary Campbell Major, member of Lincoln school board. "I was sorry Mr. Henkle felt he must resign because he could not agree with the remainder of the board on certain policies adopted. He has given earnest, unselfish work to the schools for many years, and has never spared himself in doing at all times what he considered was for the best interest of Lincoln schools."

George W. Kline: "Mr. Henkle has simply lost his point of view. He went on the board as a representative of the people, but he now apparently feels that their judgment should not control. Feeling that way he did right in resigning There is no anti-school board party in the city and no situation ought to be created to cause one to be formed."

A. M. Baird, former member of the board: "I once advocated a policy and after much discussion moved its adoption. I was in the minority and my motion was lost I then moved the adoption of the policy of the majority. I wanted definite action for the benefit of the schools."

Thursday's Question.

Should Lincoln go to the Platte river for water?

QUICK WORK IS DEMANDED

WESTERN LEAGUE COMMITTEE OKEYS PLAN OF BOOSTERS.

If Purchase Price for Ball Park Is Obtained by Saturday Night Class A Baseball Is Assured.

Lincoln will either be in or out of the Western league by Saturday night. Business men meeting with the Western league committee Wednesday noon got together on terms and the Western granted three days in which to complete the subscription of $20,000 for the purchase of Landis field.

Following a luncheon at the chamber of commerce where the different committee members—President A R Tearney A R Crawford, Tulsa Okl., owner Lee Keyser, Des Moines Ia owner, Warren C Giles, St Joseph, Mo., owner, and Howard Wakefield, former major league player who holds the option on the Sioux City franchise were introduced, another meeting was held and all phases of the plan discussed

The Western league committee adopted the plan under which the Lincoln boosters have been working and then President Tearney authorized them to go ahead and if by Saturday night, the fund had reached $20,000 Lincoln would have Western league baseball this season.

NORRIS ASSAILS HARDING

Declares Probe Shows People's Wishes Ignored.

ATTACKS M'LEAN TESTIMONY

Dissension Between Coolidge and Congress Comes Into Being Over Three Points of Investigation.

WASHINGTON, Jan 30—The senate public lands committee today decided to appoint three medical experts to determine the actual condition of former Secretary of the Interior Fall, central figure in the naval reserve oil scandal

Four personal physicians who have been attending Fall told the committee in executive session that Fall was in a condition bordering on nervous prostration.

Members of the committee, however, were not satisfied with this testimony and decided to employ three impartial experts of their own to determine whether or nat Fall is able to testify.

E. L. Doheny, lessee of two naval reserves, was present to testify but did not go on the witness stand, as the session was cut short to enable members of the committee to go to the senate floor

Meantime, the senate appropriations committee voted to report favorably the bill appropriating $100,000 for counsel to conduct the general investigation of the oil leases.

An amendment was made requiring that the counsel chosen by the president must be confirmed by the senate.

Senators Smoot, republican, of Utah, and Walsh, democrat, of Wyoming, who were designated by the committee to select the experts, will meet later in the day.

"We probably will make our selection this afternoon so the physicians may begin their examination tonight or tomorrow," Smoot said.

Norris Opens Debate.

Senator Norris, republican progressive, opened debate in the senate on the Walsh resolution, attacking the Harding executive order which transferred jurisdiction of the oil reserves from Secretary of the Navy Denby to Fall.

"This investigation shows there has been utter disregard of the policy of the people, expressed by congress from the beginning," Norris said.

"The executive order issued by President Harding preliminary to the leases, was made in absolute disrespect for law.

"The very first order on which all other contracts were based, in my opinion, was utterly illegal.

"What can you expect when there is utter disregard for law in high official life?" Norris asked.

Even if the original order was valid, the leases and contracts were absolutely void, Norris contended

Norris said "the evidence indicates

JONELLE GETS $300 FINE

Proprietor of Party House Fined $100 and Costs on Each of Three Counts.

Jean Jonelle who was arrested Monday afternoon, was fined $100 and costs on each of three counts by Police Judge Chappell, Wednesday morning when he pleaded guilty to possession, transportation and sale of intoxicating liquor. He was then turned over to the federal authorities for prosecution on at least one charge, possession of counterfeit whisky labels George Smith, a secret service man from Omaha, was present at the trial and will make arrangements for arraigning Jonelle at the proper time

The place which Jonelle conducted was raided Monday morning at 2 am? he escaped for the time being but two gallons of booch, five whisky glasses and a number of counterfeit whisky labels were taken Letters at the place showed that he had confederates in Hastings and Enid Ok. He posed as a designer of ladies dresses and other things artistic as a stall for his real business

Judge Chappell told the man that he was never to show up in Lincoln again when he once got out of jail

Reducing Labor Turnover

Economists who are recognized authorities agree that approximately 50% of the labor turnover in industrial organizations occurs during the first six months of employment

This being the case, isn't it fitting that "Helps Wanted" advertisers, should go into sufficient detail in their want ads, so as to attract only the right kind of persons wanted?

TELLS OF SIGNING NOTES TO AID FATHER

CHICAGO—Thwarted aspirations of Charles L. Appel, former host at the North Side Turner hall, to become one of the city's leading "prohibition" brewers are leaving no end of turmoil in their wake. In the first place, Appel, under indictment and fleeing the warth of creditors who are said to have tossed some $250,000 into the beer pool, is reported to be wintering in Mexico City, far from the reach of investigators and creditors' attorneys.

From Culver City, Cal., comes the news that Lila Lee, "Charlie" Appel's daughter, is about to retire from the screen unless the "cloud of suspicion" linking her name with her father's transactions is lifted. —P. and A.

"NO MAN'S LAND"

A sixty foot strip of noman's land along the Canadian side of the international border is provided in a bill designated to curb the activities of "cross the line" moonshiners and bootleggers, which will be introduced at the coming session of the Quebec legislature. Sponsors of the bill expect its passage will be followed by negotiations with the United States toward having that government add sixty feet to the no-man's land on its side of the border.

Under the bill it would be a crime for any one to possess liquor in the out of bounds zone

GIRL DECEIVED SCIENCE

Willetta Huggins, Who Recovers Partial Sight, Victim of "Hysterical Self-Deception."

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 30—Willetta Huggins, eighteen-year-old blind and deaf girl, who created a furore in the scientific world when she claimed to be able to see thru her sense of smell and hear thru touch vibrations, was a victim of "hysterical self-deception," Prof. Joe Jarstrow, distinguished psychologist of the University of Wisconsin, said here today.

Without examining Miss Huggins since the recent "discovery" that she is able to hear and see in the normal manner, he ventured that she has always been able to see and hear to that extent.

Leading scientists from all over the United States who were "taken in," by the tests which seemed to show that Miss Huggins possessed occult powers of hearing and seeing thru other than normal sense organs were victims of the "will to believe" Professor Jastrow states.

He has made a detailed analysis of Willetta's family and antecedents and states taht there would be great reason to suspect such a hysterical phenomena as the girl presents from this study, apart from the sensational powers which the tests were supposed to have shown. Miss Huggins deceived herself because she did not believe that her faculties of seeing were functioning, he said. The feats which she performed, such as detecting colors of wool, even to minute shades, were absolutely incrediable, he stated.

EX-WIZARD ATTACKS KLAN

Declares If Allowed to Continue It Will Create Monarchy in United States.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 30.—If the ku klux klan is allowed to continue as at present, it will create a monarchy in the United States, E. Y. Clarke, former imperial wizard, declared in a speech here last night. Clarke was appealing for all klansmen to attend the national conference in Atlanta February 26 at which overthrow of the present regime and a reorganization will be attempted.

Clarke said the klan is "100 per cent" un-American."

Before he took the platform Clarke was served with a summons to answer to civil charges that he had withheld $12,100 salary from Edgar I. Fuller, Omaha, his former secretary.

Fuller, it was claimed was engaged by the klansman at a salary of $1,000 monthly. Clarke on that basis owes him $12,100, it was charged, which he had refused to pay, pleading he was without funds

The petition listed various tangible assets of the former klan official, including a $100,000 home and five automobiles

MINERS VOTE UPON CHANGE

TRYING TO DECIDE ON UNION ORGANIZERS.

Attempt Being Made to Remove Appointive Power From Hands of the International President.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan 30.—The scales committee of the United Mine Workers convention will recommend a continuance of the present wage scale for a term of four years in its report to the convention, it was learned from a reliable source today

The report of the scales committee coincides with the policy of John L. Lewis, international president, who has taken the stand that a long term contract is the greatest need of the miners.

The convention may not get to the scales committee report before Friday or Saturday, owing to the delay in considering other business. Radicals are ready to make a strenuous fight on the floor of the convention to include a demand for a wage increase and possibility for their six-hour day and five-day week.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 30.—Balloting was resumed today by the United Mine Workers convention on a proposed constitutional amendment to take the appointment of union organizers out of the hands of the international president and make the positions elective.

With the roll call about two thirds completed last night when the convention adjourned, the vote stood 1,528 to remove the appointive power and 1,475 to leave the constitution unchanged.

The strong Illinois delegation threw its entire vote against the administration, giving the opposition the lead. Administration leaders, however were confident they held enough power among other delegations to win the roll call.

The debate on the appointment of organizers became so confused with personal animosities amobg delegates yesterday whichever way the issue is decided, it cannot be considered as a test of the actual strength of the administration on future roll-calls.

The scales committee is reported ready to make its recommendations to the convention on the wage question either late this afternoon or tomorrow.

BLANCHE TIERNAN DECIDES

Two-Day Wife of Professor Declares She Has Been Duped by Men Once Too Often.

HANSELL, Ia., Jan. 30.—It's going to be a cold day when Blanche Tiernan pledges her troth in another man. Yes, colder than days ever get in Iowa.

After six unsuccessful ventures with the matrimonial locksmith, the last of which ended right at the front gate, she is ready to renounce her belief in the sterner sex at the age of twenty-seven and subscribe to the theory that there's a "worm in every bud." It's the life of a maiden lady for Blanche, that is, unless she changes her mind.

This muchly married young woman is at the home of her father today. He is the preacher at the local Methodist church here. Her coming followed an arraignment in the district court at Charles City Saturday to answer a charge of forgery brought by a Belle Plaine grocer. Her payment of the costs of legal action and restitution to the grocer ended the case.

Blanche's latest trouble was brot on by prospective hubby No. 6. According to her story this man told her he had deposited money in a Belle Plaine bank for her use. The check which she wrote on this promise led to a search in several counties and ended in her arrest at Marble Rock as she alighted from a train Saturday night.

Nothing that he can do now will square the deal, says the multiple grass widow. "I'm thru with men."

Her brief courtship with this latest lover, she intimates, has proved as unsatisfactory as her correspondence courtship and feverish two-day honeymoon with Prof. John Tiernan of Notre Dame university who was in the midst of a fight with a South Bend clothier over the paternity of one of his children. He deserted her after wife No. 1, whose character he had attacked, decided she wanted him.

Before that time Blanche, at twenty-six, had tried out three husbands, and since has been married and divorced once and bethrothed again, but now she says, she is cold on 'em forever.

LELAND DECISION NEAR

Testimony of Three Alienists Differs Regarding Mental State of Wife in Case.

CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—Judge Charles M. Foell today was expected to announce a decision in the sensational divorce proceedings of Albert R. Leland, who accused the Rev. Carl D. Case of misconduct with his wife.

Testimony of three alienists, given the court late yesterday, was believed to conclude the evidence, altho all of the principals may yet be recalled to the stand.

Two of the physicians—Drs. Harold Singer and W. O. Krohn—testified they believed Mrs. Charlotte Leland was a victim of hallucinations and that she merely "imagined" intimate relations with her pastor. Dr. Sidney Kuh, the third alienist, however, told the court he believed Mrs. Leland was "not legally insane."

Leland, in his petition for divorce, declared his wife confessed misconduct with Dr. Case. Mrs. Leland on the witness stand reiterated the confession. Dr. Case, also on the stand, made a complete denial of the charges.

DIVORCES DE WOLF HOPPER

Fifth Wife of Actor Gets 30 Per Cent of His Earnings.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—Uncured after generations of amorous adventures, William DeWolf Hopper must pay 30 per cent of his earnings as a character actor as alimony to his fifth wife, who got a divorce yesterday.

The veteran comedian is sixty-six. Witness told the referee that Hopper who married Elda Furry in 1913, was "making dates" with chorus girls in 1920 and went swimming and other things with a couple of fair charmers at Oakland Beach.

The Hoppers have a son nine years old They separated over a year ago but at the time Mrs. Hopper said.

"He's one of the grandest men in America."

Previous to his marriage with wife No. 5, Hopper had been husband to Ella Gardiner, Ida Mosher, Edna Wallace and Nellie Berger

Mrs Hopper No 5 was known on the stage as Hedda Hopper

Of Vital Interest to all Girls is Miriam's fight for Her Good Name and Her Ultimate Success.

Copyright, 1923, by The Philadelphia Public Ledger.

CHAPTER XXX. Humbled.

"You mean that, Anthony"

"Mean what?"

"That I have adjustments to make before our marriage, that there may be something in my life that I want to conceal from you?"

"How do I know what to think? What do I know about your life before I came into it? You're a woman living alone, leading a thoroly unconventional life. What do I know, after all, about your standards of right and wrong, tell me that?"

"You should know," Miriam said very slowly, and as she spoke there flickered across her consciousness the memory of a night long ago. She and a man had stood facing each other on the porch of a rustic inn. That man had been considerate of her, and she had hated him for it, she had tried to put him out of her memory, and now this man she loved better than any one in the world was hurting her cruelly, was saying things that were unwarranted, worse than than unjust, for no reason. What would he say if he knew about that episode in the mountain, how would he judge her if she told him that? The thought was terrifying, and incoluntarily she shuddered.

Watching her, Anthony saw the girl's face go white, he saw her lips quiver. If she had been defiant and cold, he might have persisted in his treatment, he might have gone on flinging stinging sarcasms at her, but the sight of her, tremulous and uncertain, went to his heart and melted the ice around it.

"I do know," he burst out suddenly, striding across the room to her. "I don't know what possessed me to talk that way. I must have been mad." His arms closed around her and she clung to him, but the strain had told her, for all of a sudden she was crying. She tried to choke back her sobs, but they came faster, her throat felt hot and constricted, her eyes were burning, she sobbed wildly, hysterically with a complete loss of control that was somehow strangely alarming

"Don't ever talk that way to me again, will you Anthony?" she was saying. "I don't think I could bear it. Your eyes were so cold and hard when you looked at me and your lips were drawn into a straight line. You seemed like a stranger to me and the thought that you could believe anything wrong of me was somehow horrible."

"But I didn't believe anything wrong of you," Anthony assured her over and over. "I was jealous, call it what you will, but certainly I was not myself."

He was frightened at the girl's intensity of emotion, but back of his alarm was a feeling of triumph. He had bent her to his will, it was she who had weakened, who had come to him. Never again would he feel her remote from him, for now there was nothing he could not do with her. He was sure of her love where before he had felt respect for her individuality. Now he was certain never to lose her; she loved him enough to give up anything for him. He had frightened her with his anger, he had given her a foretaste of how he might be if he were crossed. Now he could afford to be generous, to take the blame on himself, now that he was sure of being her master.

But what Anthony did not know was that he could not drive Miriam too far. She loved him and because of that she tried to forget the things he had said to her. She did succeed in relegating them to her subconscious mind, but after that she was never quite so frank with Anthony. She was carful of what she said to him, she considered her speeches beforehand, for there was always the fear that he might fly into a rage, and Miriam never wanted to see that like that again.

PAY TAXES UNDER PROTEST

Bankers Association Instructs Banks Not to Pay Until Distress Warrants Are Issued.

A county treasurer has reported to State Tax Commissioner Smith that the state bankers' association has instructed banks not to pay their taxes for 1923 until a distress warrant is issued and then to pay under protest. Mr. Smith says this plan, if followed, will tie up taxes paid by banks until the legality of the tax for 1923 can be tested in the courts. It is assumed the banks will file a suit to test the question. The state board of taxation takes the position that here is no ground for legal dispue over the taxes of 1923 such as there was over the bank taxes of 1922. The right of the state to continue taxing banks as they have been taxed for thirty years is not questioned since congress passed an act granting the states certain rights, according to the state board.

Commissioner Smith had received a letter from an official of Indiana commenting favorably upon a reduction of taxes in Nebraska since 1921, both state and local, tho the local taxes for 1923 are more than they were for 1922. The Indiana official regrets to say that there is no reduction of taxes in that state and the prospects are not very bright for future reductions.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Advertisement.

EIGHTEEN HOURS ON POLE

Tiger Cat Perched in Comfort in Midst of Wires Which Carry High Voltage.

A tiger woman cat sat perched upon the top of a city light pole in the alley back of 1121 South Tenth street for eighteen hours. She was not there in the hope that some one would broadcast raw meat. She was chased by a snippy dog who, without his climbers, could not scale the pole.

The tiger woman nestled above 4,300 volts of electricity. She evidently had never heard the story of the mouse who did the same thing, only to meet sudden death, which cost a city $250,000. This loss was not due to any damage claim by relatives of the deceased mouse. The long-tailed flivver made the proper connection between two wires to burn up the entire system

Superintendent McClain of the humane society received a call Wednesday morning that the position of the tiger woman on the pole was exactly the same as on Tuesday night. The society head communicated with Line Foreman Henry Troudt and learned that it would be dangerous for one unacquainted with wire work to attempt rescue. A youn gman left to watch the cat until a lineman could be procured, scaled the pole, lifted the cat from her dangerous perch and made safe landing. He did not know of the high voltage which the wires carried.

Duofold converts the "Die Hards," too
—the men who think all fountain pens are alike

Its Size and Balance and 25-year Point put fresh inspiration into everyone's writing

YOU know the "Die Hards"—the fellows who believe all fountain pens are alike. They probably never owned a pen like Duofold but have four or five cheap pens rattling around in their desks.

They had no affection for alarm clocks either, until Big Ben came along and woke them up. And when Gillette first took the morning murder out of shaving, the "Die Hards" were the last to cheer the safety razor.

But there's one good thing about the "Die Hards"—they can be convinced if you show them. So whenever one of their number starts to expound his theory about fountain pens, just pull out this black-tipped lacquer-red Duofold and give him a taste of fresh inspiration.

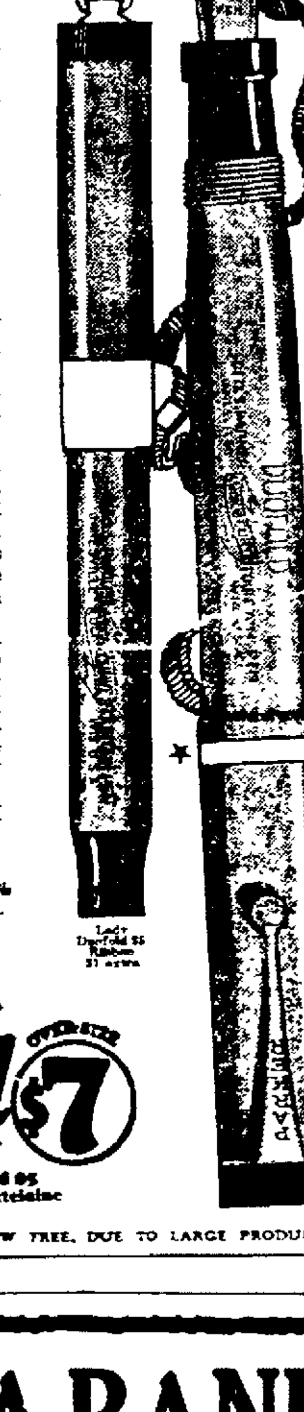

Even the hardest "Die Hard" will own up he never swung a pen with Duofold's inspiring balance. And he'll catch the new idea when you tell him this Chinese lacquer-red color makes Duofold a hard pen to lose—that its size and symmetry give it a friendly feel in the hand.

He can't write his signature without admitting that Duofold's polished Iridium point [guaranteed 25 years for wear and mechanical perfection] is the smoothest thing that ever slid over paper. And he'll like the capacity of the Over-size ink barrel.

After all, the Parker Duofold gives the biggest thrill to men and women whom ordinary pens can't stir.

If you don't own the Duofold already, get this classic at the nearest pen counter before the "Die Hards" beat you to it.

LATE NEWS OF YESTERDAY

WELFARE SOCIETY IN ANNUAL SESSION

New Directors Are Elected and Reports on the Work of the Past Year Were Discussed.

S R McKelvie, Mrs. W. E. Barkley and Rev J W. MacDonald were elected to membership on the board of directors of the Lincoln Welfare society at the annual Welfare Society banquet held at the Grand hotel Tuesday night.

Mr. McKelvie succeeds Rev. Arthru P. S. Hyde, Rev. Mr. MacDonald succeeds the late Albert Watkins, and Mrs Barkley succeeds Mrs. Victor Krause. The remaining members of the board were re-elected. They are: C B. Anderson. Prof L. E. Aylesworth, Prof A. L Gandy, Rev. W. T. Elmore, H T. Folsom, Morris Friend, Lincoln Frost, Dr. Daisy Hanson, Dr H W. Hewitt, George Holmes, Dr. J J. Hompes, W. A. Luke, J. A. Maguire, A W. Richardson, G. O. Smith, N. Z Snell, Dr. Kate Stoddard, Mrs. C H. Swallow, H. J. Theobald. Mrs. J. F. Thompson, Prof. G. O. Virtue.

Officers of the board will be elected at the first meeting of the directors, to be held probably the first Thursday in February.

N Z Snell, president of the society, presided over the meeting. Several hundred members were present, filling the banquet hall almost to capacity. Mr. Snell first spoke on topics of general interest to the society and then introduced other officers of the organization, who made their reports and talked of their work.

At the instance of the president, a vote was taken on the question of changing Article 5, paragraph 1 of the society's constitution so that it provides for the fiscal year of the organization to close in January instead of in September. This section was taken at the suggestion of the Community Chest in order that all philantropic organizations in Lincoln will have the same fiscal year.

According to a decision reached by the members present all contributors to the Community Chest fund are eligible to membership in the Welfare society upon application for such membership. Until the organization of the Community Chest fund only those who contributed to the Welfare society were eligible to membership in the society. Since the unification of all charitable funds, the matter of membership in the Welfare society was indeterminate until the decision last night

GOOD SAMARITAN RELEASED

William Jurgenson Has Agreed to Go to Work and Help His Family.

William Jurgensen, self styled Good Samaritan who 'admits' he comprises the entire Lincoln staff of the organization and who defied the city to prevent him from collecting 'alms' for alleged charitable purposes, on the city streets, was released from the county jail Tuesday where he has been spending the month for contempt of court

A position in a lunch room, which awaited Mr. Jurgensen, was instrumental in his release. The Good Samaritan after promising and allowed to assume his lunch room responsibilities which net him $10 a week, board and room Five dollars of this weekly stipened were order turned over to his family, the rest is to apply on other debts.

UNUSUAL SEWER BLOCKADE

Long Stretch of Clothes Line Cause of Stoppage Followed By String of Grief.

An unusual sewer stoppage was discovered at Twenty-first and Garfield streets Tuesday morning by Plumbing Inspector Melker's outside gang. Approximately 200 feet of No. 8 wire caused the blockade. This presumably at some time had done service as a clothes line. Mr. Melker suggests that the owner of the line call and claim his or her property after paying the cost of removal.

When the sewer failed to function properly Monday night, one family moved to a down town hotel The inspector assumes that some one tried to clean a section of 4-inch sewer main with the wire and permitted the big string to get away and move snake-like down into the 8-inch main

SECOND PLACE ON TICKET

ASPIRANTS FOR LIEUTENANT GOVERNORSHIP.

Rumor That George A. Williams May Contest With Grant Mears and John M. McFarland.

George A Williams of Fairmont, former member of the house, is now reported to be casting his eyes in the direction of the office of lieutenant governor When he was in Lincoln recently he was said to have about made up his mind to be a candidate for congress in the Fourth district on the republican ticket.

Grant Mears of Wayne, legislator, has filed as a republican candidate for lieutenant governor. His friends have been wondering how he might manage to serve in a state office and at the same time hold the position of postmaster at his home town. It is explained by his friends that his appointment as postmaster is merely temporary He is a member of the present legislature which will go out of office next January.

John M McFarland, an attorney of Omaha, formerly a member of the state senate, was the first candidate on the republican ticket for lieutenant governor Grant Mears is the second and thus far the last.

The office of lieutenant governor now pays $1,600 for one session of the legislature in a term of two years. If the lieutenant governor is called upon to preside over a special session he receives not to exceed $200. He is paid a salary at regular and special sessions double the salary drawn by a member of the legislature. A regular session lasts about three months.

There is no provision of statute for the lieutenant governor drawing pay for the time he may serve as acting governor in the absence of the governor from the state. The last legislature established a precedent of paying the acting governor the same pay drawn by the governor or at the rate of $7,500 a year, but it declined to pass a bill enacting that precedent into a law.

Fred G. Johnson of Hastings, present lieutenant governor, is one of the three republican candidates for the United States senate. It will be his duty to call the next senate to order at 12 o'clock noon January 6, 1925, and to preside until that body is organized and the new state officers inaugurated the following Thursday. day.

THE LEAP YEAR GIRL

BY Fay Stevenson

SHOULD A GIRL PROPOSE?

Margie Mindon's Revenge.

Peggy's next meeting with Margie was not a pleasant ordeal. As long as Gregory had taken her to dances and parties Margie had been willing to describe these affairs for hours to her roommate, but since Gregory's sudden mental complex Margie no longer cared to talk to Peggy.

"Does Gregory remember me yet?" she always asked when Peggy returned from a visit to the hospital, and when Peggy shook her head Margie would leave the room hastily to avoid further conversation.

"Has he ever tried to make love to you?" Margie asked one evening. "I thought that perhaps since he couldn't remember me he might say some of the things which were intended for me to you."

Peggy's cheeks flamed and her eyes flashed, but her only reply was, "Mr. Gregory is not well enough to talk very much on any subject."

But Margie saw the color pass over Peggy's cheeks and noted the flash of her eyes, and she knew Gregory had confessed his love for her.

While Gregory had been in the hospital Margie had resumed her old friendship with Stuart Welford. In fact, she had even consented to wear the engagement ring he had given her some years ago. But Gregory was an unusual man, a man one could not forget, and at times he had very nearly proposed to her. Now, that she saw that unmistakable love light in Peggy's eyes, he seemed dearer to her than ever.

Late that evening she composed a note to him which she hoped would awaken that memory, or "complex," as the doctor termed it. It read:

"Dear Gregory boy:

"I know they keep saying you have forgotten me and have refused to admit me to the hospital because they say I worry you, but I know if you think real hard, Gavin, you'll remember the girl who used to take all your letters from you at the office She was little, blond, and had big blue eyes. You said once they were the color of the sky! You used to take her to the movies, to dances and to parties, and sometimes, Gavin, you almost proposed to her. She is very anxious to see you and her name is—

"MARGIE MINDON."

Margie mailed her letter late that evening and then returned to her room to sleep the sleep of the just. She felt that this message would carry and, most of all, she wanted to defeat Peggy Lawson. She would fix this complex business with facts rather than gentleness and sweet words. Peggy Lawson would not be allowed to rob her of a proposal!

Tomorrow—A Rough Jolt.

Make Believe.

Utica Observer-Dispatch: The drama is one of the greatest inventions of the human race. It has lived since man brought it on earth. It will live as long as he lives. Why? Because it is his world of make believe.

On the stage before him he witnesses his own moods, aims, life enacted before his very eyes. There he beholds his own ambitions, passions, dreams and hopes personified. There he lives for a few brief hours the good or bad he fain would live in reality if he could or dared.

Man forgets the real world, so often monotonous, merciless, materialistic and dull in the alluring scenes of the stage. He comes from it a made-over being.

This is true also of motion pictures. Some are inane. A few are evil. But when pictures are clean and appealing they are a joy indeed This new form of entertainment has proven its value in turning people from vice and tedium. Again the art of make believe diverts the mind and cheers the soul.

The poor boy watches the rich boy and all that pertains to his favored life, not with envy but with admiration and longing. The poor girl watches the rich in her silks and laces and instead of despising her own poor gingham, she falls in love with the finery of her more fortunate sister and aspires to finer things for herself.

We rise by being lifted, and we are lifted when we go where our dreams take flesh and shape before our eyes.

Justice Blind on Purpose.

New Republic: An extraordinary instance of use of the machinery of justice in influencing an industrial dispute has recently come to light in Arkansas. For nearly three years a strike has been in operation against the Missouri and North Arkansas railroad, in that state About a year ago, a citizens' committee at Harrison, Ark., went on the rampage, attacked the houses of strikers, drove a number of them and their families out of town, and lynched one of their number, E. C. Gregor. Next day, with, according to the American Civil Liberties Union, "a threatening mob surging around the Harrison court house," two other strikers, Vurlen Orr and Luther Wise, were brought to trial on a charge of sabotage. To save themselves from the same mob which on the preceding day lynched Gregor, they pleaded guilty, and were sentenced to prison terms of seven to ten years each.

These circumstances were sufficiently unusual, to say the least: but still more remarkable were the terms on which Governor Thomas C. McCrae released Orr and Wise on December 21 last. The railroad strike has at last been settled, and these two men have been set free on "furlough" provided all the terms of the agreement between the striking employes and the railroad are observed If this happens, the two men will get full pardons at the end of one year from the date on which they were sentenced. If the terms of the agreement are violated in the meantime, they must go back to jail. In other words, the state is entirely ignoring the question whether or not these men were guilty. It is seeking to enforce the strike settlement for the railroad by holding them as hostages. The incident might well embarrass those idealistic Fourth of July orators who insist that there is no class struggle in America and that if there is the regularly constituted authorities are benevolently neutral in it

Relying On the Future.

Colliers: A woman of artistic pretensions invited an expert to view an escritoire which she had picked up at rather a high figure

"An antique," she explained.

He responded politely to the call and went thru all the motions of making a scientific examination, viewing the inlay, the varnish and the alleged wormholes thru a magnifying glass. Then he shook his head and told her he feared she had been misled, that it was a fine bit of furniture, but not an antique.

The collector took it calmly enough.

"No matter," she said cheerfully, "it will be before I finish the payments on it."

Stern Discipline.

Philadelphia Ledger. "A major in a certain English regiment," says an American officer who served abroad, "had a great contempt for incapacity of any kind and was also somewhat impatient. A sergeant once complained to him that he could get no man to undertake the duty of barber to the company

"'Is there no gardner in the company?' asked the major testily 'See if you can find one and send him to me'

"The man was duly sent, but on receiving orders to act as barber, ventured to expostulate

"'Why!' cried the major 'if you can cut grass you can cut hair! Go and do it!'"

HOW THE BEAR CHILDREN PASSED A RAINY DAY.

"OH, pshaw!" growled Bunty Bear, as he crawled out of bed and stretched himself. "Another old gloomy, rainy day, as sure as I'm alive."

"You should be glad you're alive," grumbled his brother. "But laying all joking aside, I dislike these rainy days, too. I always hate to play out in the rain and get wet."

"Yet you wouldn't either one of you be happy if the sun was shining all the time," laughed their daddy. "That just reminds me of when I was a young bear. I had three brothers and we used to get up early every morning and go foraging through the woods for adventure.

"One of our main sports was to see who could bite the bark off of a tree trunk. The fellow who could bite the bark the highest on the tree trunk was to get the first thing we found that was good to eat."

By this time the youngsters were all excited and crowded around their daddy to listen.

"One day we four bears started out," continued Daddy Bear. "The day was gloomy and threatened rain, just about like to-day. Mother didn't want us to go, but we couldn't see any reason for staying home, so we went anyway. We soon met Bobby Coon. He told us where there was a tree filled with honey bees. Well, we took a short cut across the meadows to the woods."

"Who made the highest mark on the tree?" asked Bunty Bear.

"I did," replied Daddy Bear. "So it was up to me to find the honey-well. We spotted the tree and began tearing off the bark. The bees sailed out of that tree, right for my nose and eyes and——"

"Did you get any honey?" asked the wee bear. "Did they sting you?"

"Not one speck of honey did I get," replied Daddy, "but I got my share of stings. My! How we bears did run! Those bees chased us almost all the way home. By the time we reached home it was pouring. We were soaked to the hide.

"We had run so fast through the mud that our boots were muddy and we were sights. I remember that Mother Bear was quite angry with us. For punishment she made us sit out in the down-pouring rain. We had to sit there without any dinner or supper until the sun came out and dried our suits.

"Well, that was the last time your daddy ever ventured away from home on a rainy day. Instead, I'd help Mother around the house until the rain stopped. Look out of the window, boys."

The little bears looked out and sure enough the sun was shining.

"You see, you were so busy listening to my story that you forgot it was raining," laughed their daddy. "Time passes quickly when one's mind is busy. Now come along. I've found a lovely beehive. I chased the bees away yesterday and the fellow who can nip the highest piece of bark from that tree gets the honey."

That was enough for the bear youngsters. They tumbled out of the bear-house and went trotting off with their daddy on their first adventure.

MY HUSBAND'S LOVE

Adele Garrison's New Phase of

Revelations of a Wife

(C) 1924, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

A Letter and a Family Conference.

LILLIAN moved to the door swiftly as she spoke and unlocked it. Katie, her face purple with excitement, almost fell into the room.

"Coom qveeck to old woman's room," she gasped. "I tink she awful bad."

I ran swiftly past her, followed closely by Lillian, calling over my shoulder to Katie to fetch some water immediately. But at the open door of my mother-in-law's room I paused, seeing that whatever of alarming weakness had been hers, it was passing. True, her figure sagged against her chair, as if utterly spent, but there was color in her lips—the first thing which I watch in her—and her eyes were gleaming with determination. An open letter was clutched in her hand and as we entered, she raised it, and shook it at me feebly.

"Call Harriet and Edwin and Richard up here immediately," she said. "No, Mrs. Underwood," as Lillian moved toward the door. "I want you to stay, too. Katie!"—she greeted my terrified little maid, whose shaking hand had difficulty in proffering me the glass of water for which I had asked—"stop that trembling—I'm all right—and go down to the children. Don't let any one of them come near this room, where they can hear what's being said, until I send for them. Do you understand?"

"Oh, yes, ma'am, I feex," Katie's familiar slogan sounded, as she followed my hurried passage down the stairs, and she was at my heels when I entered the living room.

Katie Watches the Children.

"Mother Graham would like to see all the 'grown-ups' in her room upstairs right away," I announced in as casual a voice as I could manage. "Katie will stay here with you. I know she'd love to play that game of animals with you."

"All I could play would be a leetle donkey," Katie caroled, grinning widely, and in another minute the children were gathered closely around her, for they all adore her, and the three older people were following me upstairs.

"What's eating Mother?" Dicky asked in a low voice as he overtook me on the stairs.

"I wish I knew," I murmured back. "I think she must have received a letter which disturbed her, for she waved one at me when she told me to bring you all upstairs."

"A letter!" Dicky repeated vaguely. "I haven't seen any mail yet to-day."

"Nor you won't until your mother gets through looking it over," I retorted. "Have you forgotten that she insists upon having all the letters brought to her first——"

"And then transforms herself into a postman, sorting and distributing them," Dicky interrupted. "I ought to remember it. She's held me up often enough that way. But I wonder what's in the wind now, that she's hauling us all up for this mysterious conference."

He did not have to wait long for his answer. As we filed into the room Mother Graham took a quick, comprehensive look at us, and spoke imperatively.

"Lock that door, and bring some chairs near me. We don't want the children to overhear this."

Lillian Reads the Letter.

We obeyed her, and when we had formed a compact circle around her, Mother Graham surprisingly held out the letter to Lillian.

"Mrs. Underwood, you are the only one who isn't vitally concerned in this," she said, "so you won't waste any time 'oh-ing' or 'ah-ing' over it. Please read it, slowly and distinctly, mind you!"

She had all the air of a fourth grade teacher directing a reading lesson, and I saw Lillian's lips twitch as she took the stiff paper my mother-in-law handed her. But she obeyed the directions implicitly, and I think even my captious mother-in-law was satisfied at her reading of the startling epistle to which she listened.

The heading was that of an attorney in a Pennsylvania village, the date that of a few days before, the address most formal.

"Mrs. Harriet Graham,
"Bridgehampton, L. I.,
"New York.

"Dear Madame," the letter began: "It has come to our knowledge that without our permission you have removed the children of our late beloved brother, William Harrison, to your own home, and are there keeping them, without having consulted us as to our wishes in the matter. Therefore——"

Mother Graham threw herself back in her chair violently.

"Late beloved brother!" she snorted. "Why, not one of them had spoken to William for fifteen years."

ODD FACTS

The "Cave of the Winds" is a chamber under one of the falls of Niagara. It is about 160 feet high and 100 feet square, with the falling water forming the front. It is so called because of the fierce clouds of spray with which one is assailed at the entrance. Persons descending into the chamber wear rubber suits.

Three-Minute Journeys

THE FAR-OFF BANDA ISLANDS.

BANDA, the capital of the Banda Islands, lies among the Dutch East Indies, a quaint little Dutch village in a strange and exotic environment. The Dutch were a great nation in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. They colonized almost as heavily as England. In the East they secured a [illegible] which, in the future [illegible] more importance [illegible] in Europe to [illegible] belongs.

[illegible] of Banda was built in [illegible] century and was developed and improved through the eighteenth. It was fairly populous with snug Dutchmen and their plump wives and children. They built along Dutch lines, and their streets were as clean and their houses as neat as in their own Holland.

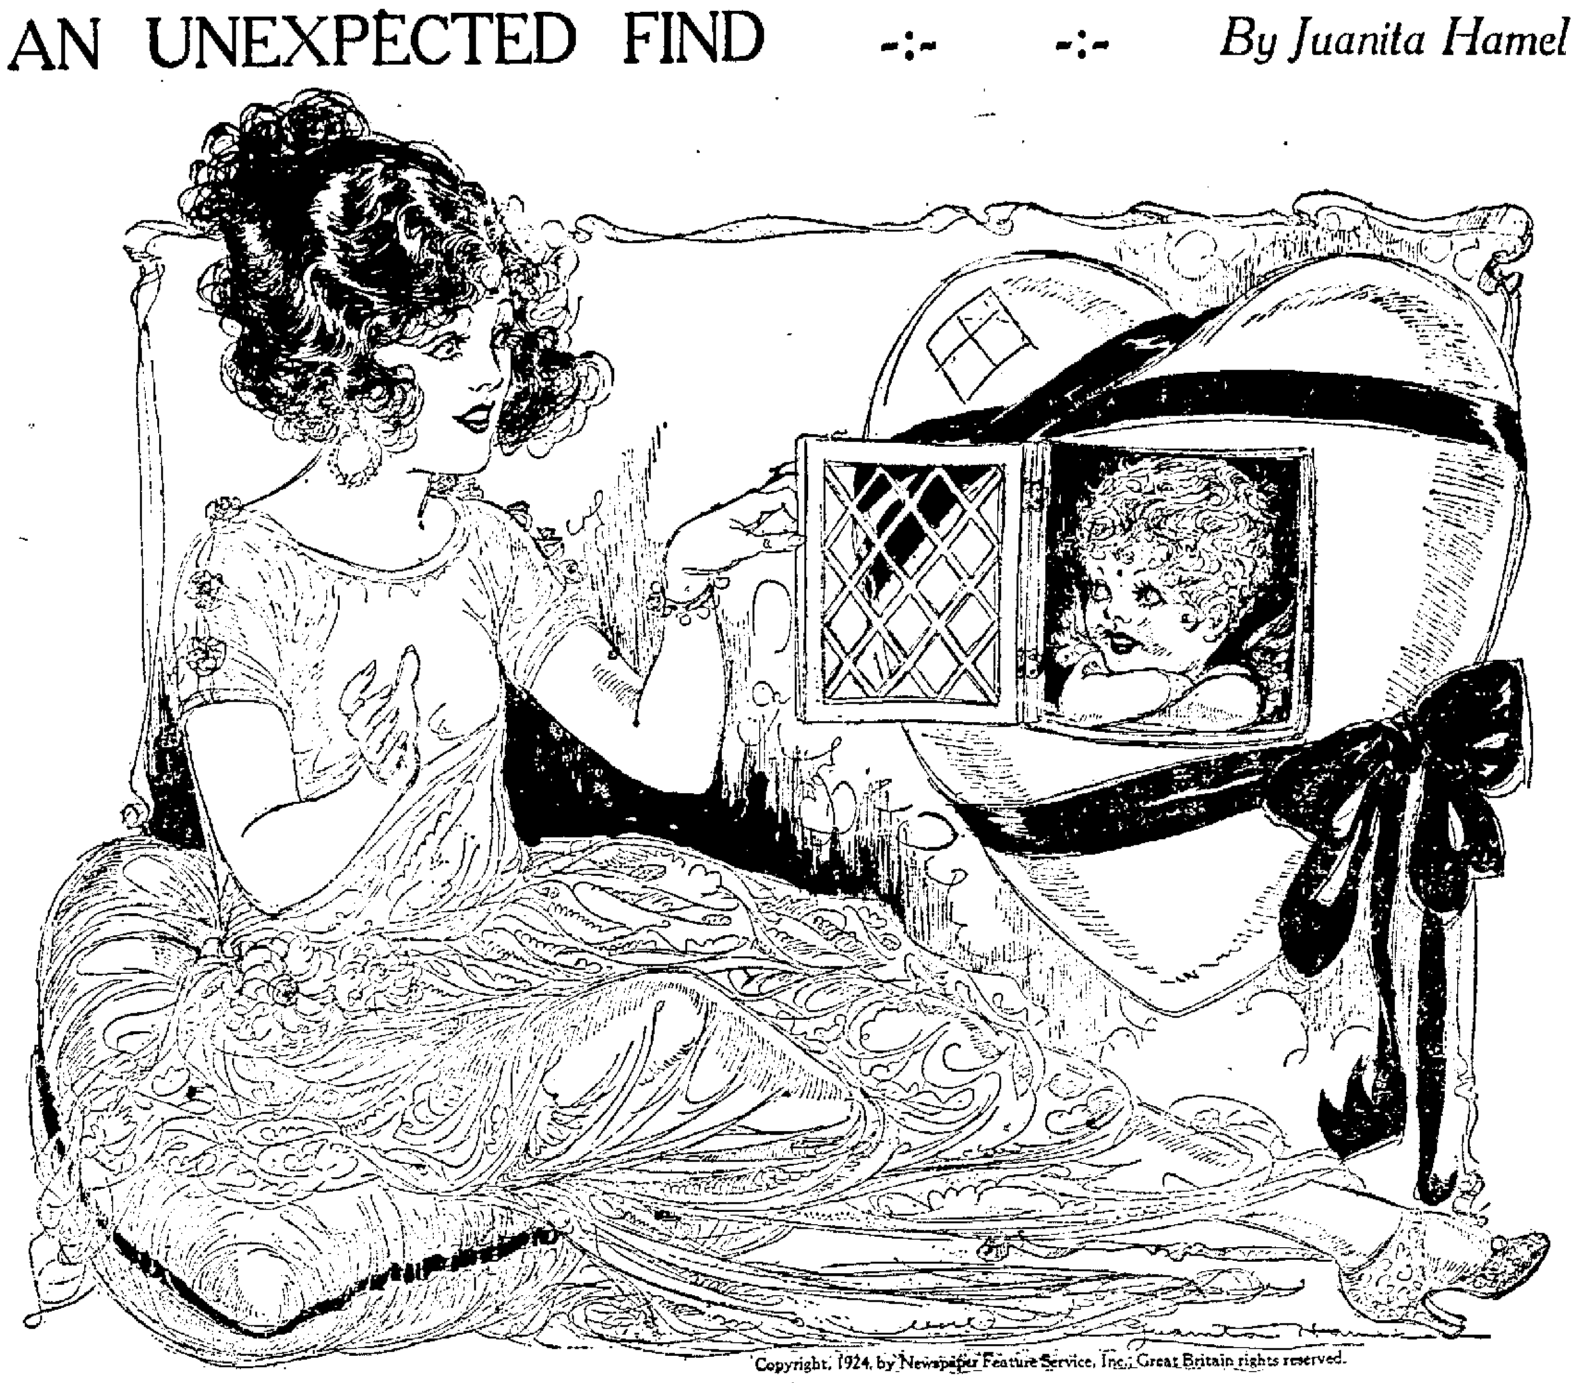

For nearly a hundred years Banda has been losing population. The Dutch inhabitants have been dying off, and the natives, of course, have not been permitted to occupy the European dwellings. Accordingly, here is a town in which two-thirds of the houses are uninhabited. The Dutch administration has been able to keep the town in good shape, despite its lack of inhabitants, and an occidental who wished to take up a residence there could secure a comfortable home for a few dollars a year.

Banda is the home of the nutmeg. It is indigenous to the islands, and something like 2,000,000 pounds are exported annually. Although the total area of the islands is only about sixteen miles, there is a mountain, known as Fire Mountain, which rises 2,200 feet above sea level. This volcano is classed among the active ones, though its last eruption was in 1852.

The original inhabitants of Banda are extinct, having been massacred by the Dutch in a very business-like way when they first took possession. The labor is done by Malays and Chinese, who were imported a century or two ago and now figure as a native population of about seven thousand. There are about 2,000 Dutch colonists.

The beauty of the islands is said to surpass any of the East Indies [illegible] able to [illegible] of the world and hopes [illegible] ing character of its hills.

AN UNEXPECTED FIND -:- -:- By Juanita Hamel

HOW often do we harbor hopes, fears and ambitions unknowingly! Blindly we wander on and suddenly, out of the wayside an ideal will creep, or a hope, and we learn that it's been there all the time! Is it not so with love? Some people just refuse to open and examine their hearts. But if they only did, they might find a most unexpected visitor. Cupid, at times, feels terribly abused when he's allowed to remain in a heart unnoticed and unpetted. But he grows from the wee thought that gave him birth into quite a strong and husky force, and is there as a great surprise when once the door's opened.

What Treatment to Follow If Your Skin Is Very Dry

By LUCREZIA BORI

The Famous Spanish Prima Donna

LUCREZIA BORI

HOW does your skin react to wind and the outdoors? Does it retain the soft velvety texture that marks a beautiful complexion?

I might also ask how your skin reacts to the warm dry heat that it encounters in steam-heated houses, whether the heat be in your own home or in the office building where you spend a great deal of your time.

You will do well to ask yourself these questions and to answer them honestly. Take a close look at your face in a good hand-mirror. Take your mirror to a window and let the light fall over your shoulder, so there's no danger of a dimly-lighted interior hiding the little blemishes that others notice when you're out in the broad daylight, and that you may give yourself little time or opportunity to see.

Doubtless, we could all appear more beautiful if we could all live in a soft half-light that lets our features be visible but hides many of the minor blemishes which come to mar our beauty. We know that we all appear lovelier by soft candle-light, and the woman who is wise manages to have a little candlelight to aid her beauty sometimes, if it's only for the time spent at the dinner-table in the evening.

Glass candlesticks are not expensive, and plain candles, either white or tinted ones, are very cheap.

However, this is digressing a bit from the subject at hand, for the subject I want to talk to you about to-day is dry skin. But you should remember the candle hint when you want to appear at your best. Not one of the seekers after beauty wants to dwell in a soft half-light much of the time, for we all know too well the value of sparkling fresh air and brilliant sunshine.

But examine your face carefully and see if exposure to these very beauty-giving elements seems to hinder the beauty of your skin rather than help it.

Do you find faint little lines about the corners of your eyes? Do they gather there, radiating out from the corners of your eyes in the fan-shaped formation commonly known as crow's feet?

If you have these, you may notice, too, that your skin has a dry, flaky appearance. If you find one or both of these symptoms, you may be pretty sure that your skin suffers from excessive dryness, and that a timely application of grease is the beauty precaution that can do wonders to help you.

Arm yourself with a good cold cream and a good skin-food. I've given you dozens of formulas for both, and there are any number of pure creams, already mixed, that any trusted druggist can recommend to you.

I advise you to give up using soap on your face for awhile. Instead of washing it with warm water and soap at night, cleanse it carefully with a good cleansing cream. It is well to take your bath at night, if possible, so you can use the skin food as follows:

Rub it well over your face after you have removed the cleansing cream. Leave it on while you take your bath. This will give it a good chance to soak into the pores which are opened by the moisture and heat of the warm tub.

Before you go to bed, rub most of the skin food off, leaving a very light coating. In the morning wash your face with cold water. If you keep this up regularly, you should see a marked improvement in your complexion.

THE HOME KITCHEN

By JEANNETTE YOUNG NORTON

The Authority on Home Cooking

Some Desserts That Are Delectable.

THE daily dessert is always a problem for the housewife. Here are a few "homey" recipes that are not very expensive and not very hard to make. There are hot and cold dishes included among them so as to provide an ample choice.

If pies are a family standby, it is a good idea to make crust enough to last a couple of days, as crust keeps well wrapped in a floured linen cloth in the icebox.

Quince Sandwiches.

Beat the yolks of four eggs to a light yellow creaminess, then add the weight of four eggs in sugar and soft butter and flour. Beat this mixture creamy, then add the stiffly-beaten whites of the eggs, pour the batter into a well-buttered, shallow baking-pan and bake it in a moderate oven about twenty minutes. Cool, then cut the bread in half with a sharp knife like a shortcake. Spread one piece thickly with quince jam, then lay the top on sandwich fashion. Dust the sandwiches with powdered sugar and serve them with a little whipped cream on top.

Old-Fashioned Apple Slump.

Make a crust of two cupfuls of sifted flour, a half teaspoonful of salt, a teaspoonful of sugar and two teaspoonfuls of baking-powder. Add enough milk to make a rolling dough. Place the dough on a floured board and roll it out a half inch thick. Butter the dough well, then strew it with chopped apples, dust it with cinnamon and sugar, pinch the ends and place it in a buttered dish in the steamer. Steam the pudding for three-quarters of an hour. Set it in the oven three or four minutes to dry off, then serve it with a good pudding sauce.

Sauce for a Brown Betty Pudding.

Make the brown Betty in the usual way and try this sauce instead of the old-fashioned hard sauce usually served. Cream together a full cupful of dark brown sugar and a half cupful of butter. When they are blended add a teaspoonful of vanilla, a grating of nutmeg and a teaspoonful of heavy cream drop by drop. Chill this sauce before serving.

Old-Fashioned Squash Pie.

To a pint of boiled and mashed Winter squash, add three beaten eggs, a generous lump of butter, a teaspoonful of mixed spices and one of ginger, half a cupful each of molasses and sugar and a large cupful of rich milk. Mix the ingredients well. Line a dish with good pastry, mark the edge with a flour-tined fork and pour in the squash mixture. Bake the pie from thirty to forty minutes, according to the oven. This is a more delicate pie than pumpkin.

A Sweet Potato and Chestnut Pie.

Peel, blanch and boil a pound of French chestnuts until they are tender, then mash them. Have ready two cupfuls of freshly-boiled and mashed sweet potatoes, add the stiffly-beaten whites of three eggs, a cupful of sweet cream, a half cupful of sugar, a teaspoonful of vanilla, a saltspoonful of cinnamon, a very little grated nutmeg and a tablespoonful of ginger syrup. Beat these ingredients well and fill the crust-lined dish. Lattice the top with strips of crust and bake the pie until the crust is done.

Italian Rice Pudding.

Wash and boil a cupful of rice. Drain it and add to it a quarter pound of finely-chopped beef suet, three-quarters of a cupful of stoned raisins, a half cupful of sugar, a teaspoonful of vanilla and the beaten yolks of four eggs. After beating all these ingredients together add the stiffly-beaten whites of the eggs. Pour the pudding into a hot buttered pudding-mould, cover it, then boil it in water an hour and a half. Unmould the dainty on a hot plate, garnish it with candied fruit and serve it with a good pudding sauce.

Spiced Apples.

Pare, core and quarter eight large, tart and well-flavored apples. Roll the quarters in cinnamon and sugar, then lay them in a well-buttered baking pan. Heat a half cupful of honey with a heaping teaspoonful of butter and a tablespoonful of ginger syrup and pour the mixture evenly over the apples. Bake the apples until they are tender and rich. Serve them hot or cold with sweet cream.

Advice to Girls — By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

Would you kindly give me some advice on a subject that is a little out of the ordinary?

I am twenty years old and have been married one short year, and am very unhappy. I have no reason to be anything but happy and contented, as my husband is very good to me and gives me my own way in everything.

Before my marriage I had many friends, who I must admit certainly belong to the twentieth century; and as I was what you would call a good dancer and an all-around "good fellow," I was quite popular.

Now, Annie Laurie, I guess that is where the trouble comes in. I miss all of the good times so much that it seems impossible to settle down. I know I should not feel this way, as it is hurting both of us, but I simply can't help it. My husband is not the kind to mix in with people, but would rather stay home and sleep. I care for him more than any one, but I am wondering whether I care enough.

Is it pity that holds me to him, Annie Laurie? If it is, isn't it fairer to him to part now and end this life that I'm making so miserable [illegible] My husband never [illegible] about anything, nor has [illegible] temper like I have. It seems queer. Sometimes I think I can settle down and be a good wife and maybe a mother, and then perhaps the next day I'm just the opposite.

Please advise me what to do.

A YOUNG WIFE.

A YOUNG WIFE: What are dances and parties and "good times"? You are an intelligent young person—you need diversion, of course, but you do not wish to make your life a bubble, I am sure. You are young, but not too young to know that only a full, useful, unselfish life will bring you real happiness. If things are dull now, are you not partly at fault? Bring happiness and joy into your home—you can do this if you [illegible] [illegible] you can do to lighten the burdens of a few poor, unfortunate girls. And you will soon forget the [illegible].

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl [illegible] years of age. I met a young man three years ago [illegible] I was [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] always [illegible] would be when we were married. He asked me to accept a ring for Christmas, but I refused to accept it. Ever since then he always wants to know the reason for my not wanting the ring, and ever since then he has been so blue.

I left town without his even knowing that I was going. A week ago I came back and met him. He is now brokenhearted and says he can never live without me and says he'll wait until I'm eighteen or as long as I say.

I go with other young men friends and they say he has never gone with a girl for over a year. I have explained it all to this young man and told him I could never love him. Now what am I to do? I want this young man as a friend and cannot bear to see him [illegible].

JUST ONE.

JUST ONE: Tell this young man that you cannot give him your answer now, for you are too young. Ask him not to mention [illegible] for at least another year. If he is willing to wait, say that you will gladly be his friend.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her, in care of this office.

YOUR HEALTH

Remedies to Be Applied Seeking Cure for Earache

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,

United States Senator from New York,

Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DR. COPELAND

WHENEVER there is chronic inflammation of the nasal mucous membrane, there is a condition favorable to the growth of pus-producing germs. Children affected this way must be guarded against contact with other children who have hard colds or running ears.

When the first symptoms of ear involvement are observed the twinges of pain may be relieved by the use of hot applications to the ear and side of the head. The hot water bag, salt bag, or a hot plate will do much to promote comfort.

There are solutions which may be warmed and dropped into the ear. The simplest one is a mixture of carbolic acid, one part, to glycerine seven parts.

It is better not to use the oils in the ear, because if the earache ends in pus formation, the oil interferes with surgical measures. Other solutions can be washed out, leaving the ear clean and ready for the doctor.

It is a good thing to have in the household a bottle of ear-drops. Especially in young children a drop or two of warm solution will give immediate relief from pain.

Here are two prescriptions which I have used for years and have given to endless numbers of mothers to stop the aching ears of little children:

1. Camphor-chloral, five drops; almond oil, twenty-five drops; glycerine, thirty drops. Mix. Warm and drop in the ear as required.

2. Plantago major, four drams; belladonna mixture, fifteen drops; tincture of aconite root, ten drops; Magendie's solution, twenty drops; enough water to make one ounce. Mix. Warm and drop into the ear every five minutes if necessary.

The vapor of chloroform relieves some earaches as if by magic. Place a bit of cotton in the bowl of a pipe. Saturate it with chloroform. With your mouth over the bowl force the vapor through the pipe stem into the ear of the patient.

Tobacco smoke may be used in the same way.

In the absence of any drug you may apply heat directly to the ear-drum by gently pouring warm water into the ear canal. Do not use force. Pour the liquid from a warm spoon, or use a fountain syringe, raised just above the level of the ear.

If it can be applied, steam may be used instead of water. By attaching a piece of rubber tubing to the radiator valve, the steam may be conducted to the aching ear.

The old-fashioned and reliable household remedy is laudanum and sweet oil, but, as I have said, oil is objectionable. Remember, too, that this local remedy and the others I have told you about are poisons and must be kept from the children.

The last suggestion I can make is to mention warmed strained honey as an agent for providing heat and comfort to the aching ear.

Your treatment is not complete unless the nose and throat are given appropriate treatment. Tampons of argyrol inserted in the nose will assist greatly in relieving the primary cause for the earache.

Answers to Health Questions

A. M'D. Q.—What is the cause of a child, four years of age, chewing her finger nails?

A.—The condition you mention is due to either habit or nervousness.

* * *

H. H. H. Q.—Will you please tell me the cause of pleurisy and what will cure it?

A.—Pleurisy is an inflammation of the sac covering the lungs. Usually it is the result of an inflammation of the lungs. The cure depends upon the location and requires the care of a physician.

* * *

Dr. Copeland will answer for readers of this paper questions on medical, hygienic and sanitation subjects that are of general interest. Where the subject of a letter is such that it cannot be published in this column, Dr. Copeland will, when the question is a proper one, write you personally if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is enclosed. Address ALL INQUIRIES to Dr. R. S. Copeland, in care of this office.

Coach Schulte Has Big Squad Working For Track Team

HUSKERS TO ENTER ILLINOIS RELAYS

Nebraska to Participate in Annual Event at Urbana—First Meet of Year Is Indoor at K. C. A. C.

Warmer weather and the approaching debut of the 1924 track season has swelled the Nebraska squad of track athletes to approximately 250 candidates. Captain Maurice Gardner carries a list of the athletes reporting regularly and it is longer than the average man's arm.

The final tryouts for the K. C. A. C. indoor meet at Kansas City February 9, will be held next Saturday. Candidates from the medical school at Omaha will be here at that time. This meet officially opens the track season. The next meet finds the Cornhuskers going to Urbana for competition in the Illinois relays on March 1. Then comes the Missouri Valley indoor meet at Kansas City, March 8.

Of the twenty-four letter men last year seventeen are back, and with the new candidates both Coach Schulte and Captain Gardner are confident that Nebraska will be well represented on the cinders.

The letter men back include: Captain Gardner, Everett Crites, Jacob Cohen, Monroe Gleason, Orris Hatch, Cecil Hartman, Dean Higgins, W. D. Lear, M. H. Layton, Douglas Myers, Alfred Parks, W. P. Riddlesbarger, T. M. Siemons, Louis Trexler, Howard Turner and R. E. Wier.

The return of Roland Locke, sprinter, and M. H. "Red" Layton, also a speedster, bolstered the prospects.

Coach Schulte has been directing the early workouts under a handicap as the stadium indoor arrangement was not completed but next year when it is enclosed and the fixtures permanent, Nebraska will have its own indoor meets. Coach Schulte is planning on at least two of these for 1925.

BATTLING SIKI PAYS FIRST VISIT TO CHICAGO

—P. & A.

Gentle as a lamb, and acting like an overgrown boy, Battling Siki, the singular Senegalese fighter, arrived in Chicago without disturbing the loop in the least. Barring escape from his keepers. Manager Bob Levy, Tommy Walsh, and Jock Malone, he will leave soon for Minneapolis.

Siki can understand English better than he can speak it.

The Senegales shapes up in fine style. His muscles stand out prominently and they are hard as steel. He has excellent conformation, and judging from the manner he whaled away at the punching and sand bags, he can sock with either hand.

THE STORY OF THE WORLD'S GREATEST PROMOTER

CHAPTER XII.

About Nelson's Foul.

When George Siler appeared in the ring that September afternoon eighteen years ago, and called Joe Gans and Bat Nelson to the center for final instructions, I was a much relieved man. The fight now was a certainty. I could sit back and see every blow without another worry about the preliminaries.

I was really interested in the fight itself as much as in the promotion I wanted to see every blow.

Just as Gans was about to pull on his gloves we passed up a telegram to McDonald who in turn gave it to him. It was from Joe's old mother in Baltimore and the wording became historic. One phrase of it is today a by-word in sport. It read:

"Joe: The eyes of the world are on you. Everybody says you ought to win. Young Peter Jackson will tell me the news, and you bring home the bacon."

Another telegram that caused a big laugh was from John L. Sullivan:

"Sorry I can't be at the fight. It ought to be a corker. My regards to all, especially the Sullivans."

Larry Sullivan was Gans' financial backer and took an active part in the darkey's corner. He was also master of ceremonies.

In presenting the fighters to the crowd the announcer warned against disorder, declaring that there were three hundred armed deputies in the crowd; if called on they would mean business. He was right too.

That crowd was a picturesque assemblage. There were miners, cowboys, bootblacks, distinguished men from all cities and fully three hundred women.

From the start these women seemed to be in sympathy with Gans in fact he was the favorite of most everybody before the fight had gone ten rounds.

Never Anything Like It.

Gans started it by jabbing Nelson with his left twice in rapid succession. From that moment the crowd saw what I regard as the greatest fight ever held in America. For sheer grit and endurance I have never seen anything else. [illegible] below the belt. Some claimed that he had been instructed to do this from his corner. I don't know the truth about that. But I do know that Referee Siler frequently warned him.

[illegible]

"Foul!" Foul!" frequently came from Gans' corner and also from the crowd.

Nelson Resorts to Butting.

Then Nelson began butting. Several times he bored in and drove his hard head against Gans' chin. Joe protested but as no harm was done Siler let it pass.

The crowd was getting disgusted with Nelson. On top of his other foul tactics he struck Gans in the stomach when the negro was lifting him to his feet. There was a big hiss at this.

In the thirty-fifth round, I thing it was, Nelson slipped and was almost driven thru the ropes. Gans caught him and lifted him to his feet. In response to this Nelson socked his fist squarely in the darkey's mid-section.

The crowd, seeing Nelson outclassed in the boxing, began offering bets on Gans at 2 to 1 and even 3 to 1 with no takers.

In the thirty-third round Gans landed a hard punch on Nelson's jaw and broke a bone in his hand. His sign of distress was a limp. No one knew of his broken hand until afterward.

And so the fight dragged and mauled on, the two hammering at each other. Nelson's face was beaten to a pulp. The negro also was bleeding from the nose and ears. It sure was a fierce scrap.

In the last round Gans led off with a straight left to Nelson's face. Bat immediately fell into a clinch. As they broke Nelson struck Gans a hard uppercut blow in the groin. Gans slowly sank to the floor in great pain.

Cheers for the Referee.

There is no question in my mind that the foul was deliberate. Anyway, it was a foul blow that everybody in the great crowd could see. There was no [illegible] argument about [illegible] the whole crowd agreed with Siler. [illegible]

PADDOCK WANTS TO REDEEM HIS PLACE

Asks for Reinstatement and Admits Errors—Fastest Human Wants Chance to Try for Olympic Team.

BY HENRY L. FARRELL.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—Charley Paddock is willing to do anything but get down on his knees to get a chance to try out for the American Olympic taem.

"I want to make the Olympic team if I can and I don't want to cause any big fight about it," Paddock said here late yesterday. "I have applied for re-instatement to the A. A. U. and I have made what I think sufficient explanation for the points of differences between us.

Admits He Was Wrong.

"I was technically wrong in going to Paris last summer and I'll admit it," he said. "I didn't know at that time and the athletic officials at the University of Southern California did not know that the permission of the A. A. U., according to international rules, was necessary for any international competition in which an American athlete engages.

"I have asked the A. A. U. to reinstate me but I have not apologized and I feel that I should not be expected to do so. I have explained everything. The criticism I was quoted in the press as making against the A. A. U. was the result of a violation of newspaper confidence. I said several things about the A. A. U. but they were private opinions and I certainly did not wish to make them officially.

"I can defend myself against all the charges made against me excepting those pertaining to my character. I'll have to ask the public to be the judge on that point. If the A. A. U. wants to attack my character, it must assume the burden of proof.

Too Much Fuss About It.

"I am sorry that so much fuss has been made about this case. But I have done nothing to keep the controversy alive and in fact I have remained silent altho such silence entailed a personal risk."

Paddock said since the A. A. U. had attacked his character and cast aspersions on him, as not being qualified as an "American gentleman," he had retained counsel here to look after his interests.

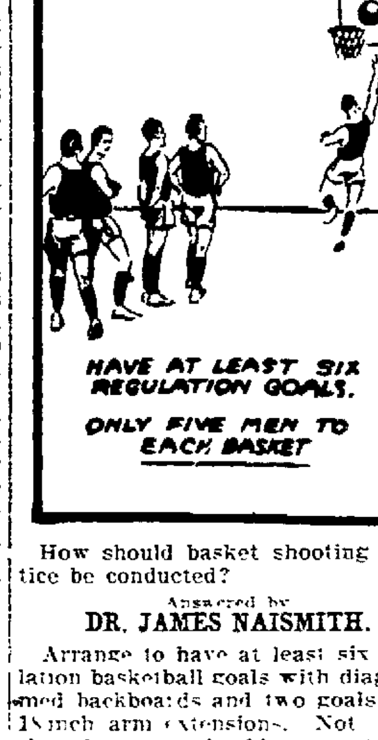

"My good name means more to me than any records I have made and I'm not going to have it kicked around without demanding proof," he said.

In Best of Condition.

Paddock said that he is in splendid condition. He weighs 158 pounds now in his running clothes and is ten pounds lighter than he was when he ran in Antwerp.

The ankle, which he injured some time ago, is sound again and he feels sure that he will be in top form in Paris next summer.

LITTLE LESSONS IN Basketball

How should basket shooting practice be conducted?

Answered by
DR. JAMES NAISMITH.

Arrange to have at least six regulation basketball goals with diagrammed backboards and two goals with 18-inch arm extensions. Not more than five men should work at each basket. The baskets with the 18-inch extensions are valuable to encourage clean shooting as the player can not rely on the backboard for a hope-shot or a rebound.

The regulation baskets with the backboards are to be used for regular carom and rebound work. In basket shooting practice, the coach should detail each squad of five to some capable assistant, in order that each man may get careful individual training in the development of correct technique in the fundamental shots, the [illegible] loop or arc shot, [illegible] throw shot, the one hand [illegible] or follow shot, and the hook or place shot.

Keep everlastingly at your workout shots.

JOIE RAY AND RAY SCHALK, BOTH AFTER WORLD'S RECORDS, HELP EACH OTHER TO KEEP IN CONDITION

Ray (at left), one of the world's greatest runners, and Schalk, one of the greatest catchers now playing baseball, have been training together at the Chicago Athletic club. Ray has been burning up the indoor tracks this season. Schalk is after the world's record for the greatest number of games caught. He makes it a rule to start training about the first of January so that when the rookie pitchers show up he can try them out.

RAILROADING MEN OUT OF BIG TIME

Players Shunted to Minors Appear to Be Riding Old "Railroad," But John McGraw Defends and Explains.

NEW YORK, Jan 29 — Major league managers and club owners deny that they have among themselves a gentleman's agreement not to interfere with each other's trading activities, by claiming useful players upon whom waivers have been asked.

From time to time, the fans, who have not access to the inside of baseball, find evidence that points to such an agreement. The players, who certainly are in a good position to hear back-stage talk, accused the club owners so directly with being willing to slide players out of the big leagues that they started to form a union a year ago to fight it.

When fifteen major league clubs recently allowed Elmer Smith, a .300 hitter, the champion pinch hitter of the American league and a fair fielding outfielder, to be slipped out to the American association without a claim being made for him, it seemed strange, to say the least.

Hard to Understand.

It was hard to nnderstand why clubs in need of a reliable fielder and a hard hitter would offer big money to gamble on a minor league player when they would not accept for the waiver price a player of known ability.

Perhaps it was natural to figure that the Yankees wanted him to complete a deal with Louisville for young Combs, a rookie with two season's experience, and that the other clubs acted on the agreement—"I'll not claim yours if you'll not claim mine."

Beyond an abstract denial of charges that the old "railroad" was still working, only one club official would take the trouble to explain how such things could happen regularly as a part of routine business.

John McGraw, vice president and manager of the Giants, suggests that in the case of Smith several rival managers might have wanted to take him away from the Yankees, but they might not have been able to do it.

"Major league clubs are allowed to have only forty players on their list at any one time, and just before the training seasons starts, it is seldom that a manager has a place on his team at a moment's notice," McGraw says.

It is a well known fact that the "forty player limit rule" is one of those rules that looks good on the books, and that is respected only as a good looking rule by the baseball people. It is also believed generally that the rule never will prevent a club owner from taking on a player that he really wants.

There is more to another argument presented by McGraw, however, that frequently a fancy contract prevents one club from taking a player from another club, for even the low price of the waiver.

If Smith had a three or four year contract at a salary of $7,000 or $8,000 it is not likely that one of the club owners not in the wealthy class would care to assume the obligations of a contract if they would consider a baseball contract as placing any obligations on the club owner.

With a lot of sound wisdom behind the point McGraw also calls to mind that major league managers [illegible] know a lot more about the ability of players than the fans and the writers.

It Doesn't Mean Anything.

He points out that all managers are not in such a position [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

Burns developed into a brilliant player with the lowly Red Sox. He had a chance to work regularly and hit all kinds of pitching, and it is possible that the coaching of Frank Chance may have enabled him to find himself last season.

At the age of thirty-one, the average baseball player is far past his prime, but Burns seems to be just arriving, at the rather "advanced age."

Speaker a Poor Trader.

Tris Speaker has been one of the greatest of all players and is still a fine performer in the field and at bat. He is a capable manager and a brilliant leader, but from the result of two big trades he has made, he is the worst peddler in the business.

In giving O'Neil, Wamby, Connolly and Boone to the Red Sox for Burns, Fewster and Walters, the Indians, however, may have been forced by the hand of Ban Johnson.

Johnson is out to rebuild the club that Frazee wrecked in Boston and it is proable that Johnson has not sold the stock in the Cleveland club that he was to be in possession of during the Carl Mays litigation.

HUSKER BASKETEERS ON THREE-GAME TRIP

TIGER TRACK TEAM IN FIRST TRYOUTS

COLUMBIA, Mo., Jan. 29.—Aided by a couple of days of moderate weather Coach Bob Simpson has gotten his Tiger track team in slightly better condition, and tomorrow the Missouri runners will hold their first real trials of the season to determine the personnel of the squad which will go to Kansas City next week to run in the Kansas City Athletic club's invitation indoor meet. Simpson expects to take a varsity team of about twenty men, and three or four of his most likely freshmen athletes, who will compete independently.

Missouri's greatest hope at the K. C. A. C. meet appears to be in the field events and the distance races. Not particularly strong in the sprints and only moderately so in the hurdles, the Tigers will be still further handicapped by inability to get into condition on account of the weather. The distance men rank somewhat higher than the sprinters, and have not suffered quite so much from the weather handicap, but they will be far from the condition they would show had they been working indoors all winter.

Doss Richerson is expected to be a very strong contender for first place in the shot put as he has been tossing the sixteen pound weight consistently between forty-three and forty [illegible] feet, and his teammates, Tom Elen and Gardner Surface, should stand a chance of getting into the scoring. Waddell and Reid, both letter men are expected to count heavily in the high jump, and Donohue, the Tigers' only pole vaulter, should get into the scoring column.

JOE JACKSON TELLS OF GETTING MONEY

Former Major Leaguer Sues White Sox for Back Salary—Brings Back Scandal of 1919 World's Series.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 30—Charging that players implicated in the 1919 world's series scandal had used his name in connection with the alleged "throwing of games" without his permission, "Shoeless" Joe Jackson took the stand in his damage suit for back salary against the Chicago American league baseball club in circuit court here late yesterday and denied that he had played dishonestly in the much discussed series.

Jackson testified that after the series had ended he was given an envelope and told it contained money about which he had known nothing up to that time. He told of having gone to see the White Sox officials regarding this matter but that they had told him to "go home."

Two newspaper men, "who covered" the 1919 series, took the stand in defense of Jackson and testified that as far as they could see, Jackson played great baseball and that not at any time during the series did they see anything which would indicate he threw games.

George B. Hudnall, attorney for the White Sox however, said Jackson was not discharged because of his inability to play good baseball, but because of "crookedness" in the 1919 series.

Judge Gregory overruled the motion of White Sox attorneys to dismiss the case on a demurrer.

Canadians Speed To Ice Conquest

CHAMONIX, Jan. 30.—Canada's spectacular hockey team, which has been the sensation of the Olympic matches, continued its sweep over all opposition here this morning by defeating Switzerland, 33 to 0.

Watson and McCaffrey scored practically all of the goals for the Canadians.

England defeated Belgium 20 to 3 in another of the morning contests.

The Canadian team is considered by the most of the critics here as being sure of the championship. Nothing has ever been seen in Europe to compare with the dazzling speed and the brilliant execution of the Canadians.

At the completion of the curling championship England had totalled the greatest number of points and won the championship.

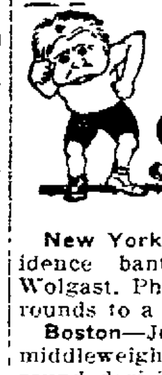

The ski jumping contests, the most spectacular event of the winter games started today under the most ideal conditions. Thirty-three contestants started out for the championship.

They ascended 2,700 feet above the starting place for the fifty kilometer race on a course that was almost a sheer drop down the mountainside.

The temperature was 29 degrees and the slides were in perfect condition.

Thorlief Haug, of Norway, known as the "King of skiing," won the first event on the program, when he finished first in the fifty kilometer marathon race. His time was 3:44:32.

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., Jan. 29.—The Grand Island college Zebras smothered the Doane college five here tonight by the score of 32 to 20. The game was a listless, one-sided affair from the start, with the visitors clearly outclassed in every department of the game. Bryan, a Doane guard, played the stellar game for the Tigers, while Ross Chord and Mandeville were the main point getters for the Grand Island quintet.

FLOCK TO AID DRY LEADER

DIVINES AMONG THOSE BEHIND CONVICTED CHIEF.

William Anderson Faces Prison Sentence of Two and Half to Five Years Following Verdict of Jury.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30—A fight to keep William H. Anderson from jail will be launched tomorrow, counsel for the Anti-Saloon league superintendent, who was convicted last night of third degree forgery and faces a jail sentence of from two and one-half to five years, announced today.

Ex-Governor Charles Whitman and his assistants, who defended Anderson, will confer tomorrow on plans for an immediate appeal.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—Prominent "drys" and divines, reformers and rectors of leading New York churches, and other supporters of the anti-saloon league, flocked today to the support of its state superintendent, William H. Anderson, convicted by a jury last night of forgery in the third degree.

"This is just the beginning of a great prohibition fight in this state," Dr. Charles Ross, pastor of Anderson's Central Methodist church in Yonkers, declared.

Thruout the city, as news of Anderson's conviction spread, opinion was unanimous that there was more to the case than the technical forgery charge.

"Bless the boys of the jury," exclaimed a ruddy faced traffic policeman at a Fifth avenue crossing and even the women attending the Kansas society dinner at the McAlpin, supposedly native sons of prohibition's parent states, agreed:

"Anderson's conviction was a good thing."

The anti-saloon league superintendent faces a sentence from two and a half to five years' imprisonment.

Anderson was found guilty of ordering alterations in the books of the anti-saloon league to cover a transfer of $4,400 paid to the superintendent by O. Berstall Phillips in accordance with an agreement whereby part of the latter's commissions were split "50-50." Phillips, discharged by Anderson without notice, went to the district attorney with the story.

The jury was out an hour and forty minutes and found Anderson guilty on the second ballot.

Ex-Governor Whitman, the defendant's counsel, was to announce today his decision regarding an appeal. Anderson meanwhile was freed on $5,000 bail.

"William H. Anderson has been a traitor to his cause," said Fannie Hurst, novelist, when informed of the conviction. "It seems unfortunate that at the crucial period following prohibition when the whole movement seems to be hanging in the balance and found wanting, that this serious blow should have fallen on the Anti-Saloon movement.

Others besides Ross and Miss Hurst seemed to see more to the affair of Anderson than meets the eye.

Dr. Christian F. Reisner, pastor to the Chelsea Methodist church, said: "I am still convinced that while Anderson may have been foolish, he is not a crook or a grafter. He had given his life as a hard fighter against the saloon and naturally he has made bitter enemies."

Then there was the reaction of the other side—Mrs. Ida Mott Gillett, wife of Ransom H. Gillett, counsel for the Association Opposed to Prohibition, exclaimed:

"Isn't that splendid!"

SAYS M'CRAY BANKRUPT

Referee in Bankruptcy Who Investigated Indiana Governor's Affairs, Makes Finding.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 30.—Gov. Warren T. McCray should be adjudged bankrupt, according to a finding made by Harry C. Sheridan, referee in bankruptcy, today

The report will be submitted to Judge Albert B Anderson for approval.

In making the finding, Sheridan said that the governor, at the time of the filing of the petition in bankruptcy by three Fort Wayne banks, was not a laborer or a person chiefly engaged in farming or the tilling of the soil.

This was the main point at issue at the nine day hearing before Sheridan in November.

Sheridan also found that the governor was insolvent.

Investigation of McCray's personal finances was started several months ago when he announced he was broke."

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY EXTENSION LESSONS

BY S. S. CENTER

SECRETARIAL CORRESPONDENCE—II. The Marks of a Good Letter.

A GOOD letter, whether business or social, is concerned with one main idea, or has one definite purpose; that is, it should have unity of idea. A letter is effective only when it sticks to the text. It should not be a miscellaneous assortment of things like a bargain counter. Such a letter is not only ineffective, it often lacks good taste. If you are writing a a letter to some one who has had some misfortune, in order to express your sympathy, certainly you would not include any other topic.

If you have occasion to write to a business firm about a matter that you wish adjusted, and also in regard to an order for goods, you would be more likely to get efficient service if you wrote two letters, an order letter that would be routed to the order department and an adjustment letter which should be answered by the claim and adjustment department. The principle of unity is the first requisite of a good letter. One topic or only closely related topics should be discussed in a letter.

The second main principle to be applied in letter writing is coherence. This means that after you have assembled the material of a letter you should organize the material into an orderly composition so that the parts follow one another in a natural, logical order. It is characteristic of the untrained writer to jumble material, to mention one topic and then another, and then go back to the first. Such writing is the result of confused thinking. There are certain words that help the reader to see just what is the relation of a sentence or paragraph to the preceding; for example, however, on the other hand, it follows that.

Another principle to keep in mind in writing letters is that every letter should be adapted to the person to whom it is written. It has been said that two people should write every letter—the one who actually writes it and the one who reads it. The successful letter writer always keeps in mind the person to whom he is writing. That is easy enough in social letters but it must be cultivated in business letters, for often they are written to people whom we have never seen. It is easy to fall into expressions that are perfunctory and a little indifferent unless we are on guard. One's imagination is very useful in writing business letters, especially sales and adjustment letters.

It has been said that a good test to apply to a social letter is to cut off the name of the person to whom the letter is written and the signature. Then if one can supply both, judging from the content of the letter, the letter is adapted to the recipient of the letter. After some experience in reading published letters, it is not difficult to identify the letters of certain letter writers who are highly individual in their interests and style. There is a vivid exclamatory quality in the letters of Mme. de Sevigne, the queen of letter writers. Mark Twain's quizzical, sarcastic drawl, the leisurely gossip of Horace Walpole, the dignified, sonorous periods of Dr. Samuel Johnson, the color and music of Lafcadio Hearn's diction—all become familiar to the reader of letters.

The opening and closing paragraphs of a letter deserve special consideration. The entrance and exit should be effective. It is distinctly ineffective in business letters to use the participial closing and "beg to remain." Avoid such closings as "Thanking you for past favors, I beg to remain, Very truly yours." Close with a complete sentence that does not need the signature to round it out; for example, "We appreciate your orders (or patronage). Very truly yours, John K. Jones."

The wise secretary does not begin her letter: "We have your letter of Oct. 10, and in reply quote you the prices as per request." In this letter the most important place in the whole letter is sacrificed for an unimportant detail, acknowledging the receipt of a letter. At least this version seems more natural: "We are glad to quote you prices in reply to your letter of Oct. 10."

An important principle of letter writing for the secretary to keep in mind is that letters should have the ease, the life, the spontaneity and the individuality characteristic of conversation at its best. It seems that when some people write letters they adopt a kind of legal phraseology that has no meaning or else use trite, worn-out words.

The use of stereotyped and legal phrases destroys the conversational tone of a letter. Many firms have made a list of such words and phrases to be avoided by all who dictate or write letters. Such expressions are:

Advise, meaning inform us.	Same, meaning it, they, them.
Favor, meaning a letter or an order.	Kindly, meaning please.
Hand you, meaning send you.	As per, meaning according to.

Such a list should be extended and studied by every one who writes business letters.

This lesson has insisted that:

1. Good letters have unity of ideas.
2. The content of a good letter is properly organized in accordance with the principle of coherence.
3. Good letters are adapted to the reader.
4. Good letters have effective opening and closing paragraphs.
5. The natural, conversational tone of a good letter should not be destroyed by meaningless, legal or stock phrases.

To-morrow the lesson will discuss the letter of introduction, the claim and adjustment letter.

LIVESTOCK DECREASES

FEWER HEAD, OF LESS VALUE, THAN LAST YEAR.

Cattle on Nebraska Farms Show Slight Increase. Mules Hold Their Own. Other Classes Fall Off.

Less livestock on Nebraska farms and lower values are shown in the annual January report of the division of crop and livestock estimates. There are less horses, hogs and sheep, more milk cows and other cattle, but no change in mules. Each class of livestock has a lower average value, and also lower total value except milk cows. All livestock is valued at $229,375,000 against $248,-455,000 a year ago. Total number of all classes was 10,194,000 head as compared to 10,348,000 head a year ago.

There were 863,000 horses on farms as compared to 901,000 head a year ago. There has been a decline of nearly 8 per cent since 1920. The average value of $55 per head, compared to $58 a year ago, is the lowest since 1920. The total value is $48,265,000 as compared to $52,-258,000 a year ago.

Mules total 114,000 head, or the same as last year. This is an increase of 14 per cent since 1920. The average value is $69 per head or $1 per head less than last year. The total value is $7,866,000 against $7,980,000 a year ago.

Milk cows show a substantial increase with 587,000 head against [illegible] a year ago, and a gain of over 17 per cent since 1921. Milk cows had reached the lowest number in 1921 for more than a decade but the depressed prices of grain and [illegible] a marked increase [illegible] The average value is $[illegible] per head against $[illegible] a year ago. However the total value shows [illegible] $32,572,[illegible] against $[illegible] a year ago.

Numbers of other cattle are slightly greater than a year ago, being 2,[illegible] as compared to 2,[illegible] a year ago. The number had dropped to 2,[illegible] head in 1921 and much of the gain since that time seems to be due to increased feeding and breeding stock, has increased some also. The average value is $30.30 per head against $31.80 a head a year ago. The total value is $82,628,000 as compared to $85,860,000 a year ago.

Hogs decreased from the record-breaking number of 5,330,000 head a year ago to 5,223,000 head on January 1. The last spring crop of pigs shows a gain, but this was offset by a decreased fall crop of pigs and heavier losses than a year ago. The average value was $10 against $12 a year ago. The total value was $52,230,000, as compared to $63,-960,000 a year ago.

Sheep decreased from 733,000 head a year ago to 660,000 head on January 1. The great bulk of this number are in feed lots, the native sheep comprising a small percentage of the total. The average value per head was $7.90 against $8.10 a year ago. The total value was $5,214,000 as compared to $5,937,000 a year ago.

Total numbers of livestock in the United States, now and a year ago, are as follows: Horses, 18,263,000 and 18,627,000 head; mules, 5,436,000 and 5,455,000 head; milk cows, 24,-675,000 and 24,437,000 head; other cattle, 42,126,000 and 42,803,000 head; sheep, 38,361,000 and 37,223,000 head; hogs, 65,801,000 and 68,227,000 head.

Average values per head of livestock in the United States now and a year ago are as follows: Horses, $64.41 and $69.52; mules, $84.20 and $85.94, milk cows, $52.16 and $50.83; other cattle, $24.99 and $25.57; sheep, $7.88 and $7.51; swine, $9.76 and $11.59.

BIG STEP TO END DISPUTES

POINCARE AND MACDONALD OUTLINE THEIR VIEWS.

Differences of French and British Include Ruhr Occupation and British Recognition of Russia.

PARIS, Jan. 30 — A big step has been made in an effort to straighten out Anglo-French differences, a semi-official statement said today.

Premier Poincare and Prime Minister Macdonald have just exchanged personal letters in which each outlined the viewpoint of his government.

"From the viewpoint of those interested in Franco-British cooperation," the semi-official statement says, "the exchange of letters between heads of the two governments constitutes an excellent start."

Pending differences between the two nations include the dispute over French occupation of the Ruhr, the British attitude in favor of recognition of Russia and the whole reparations question and allied problems.

A solution of the differences, it is emphasized here, would mean a tremendous step toward the restoration of Europe and enhancement of the prestige of the labor government in Great Britain. It was announced the letter of Premier Poincare was sent the French ambassador in London yesterday and will be delivered to Macdonald as soon as he returns from Scotland.

"The letters being exchanged are entirely personal," the semi-official statement said, "and Premier Poincare has refrained from giving out the substance of his communications.

"It is indicated unofficially, however, that the correspondence probably will lead to a personal meeting between the two government heads."

LONDON, Jan. 30.—Premier Ramsay Macdonald's direct, unconventional diplomacy seems about to encounter its first test.

There is considerable curiosity regarding the exchange of personal letters between Macdonald and Premier Poincare of France.

Macdonald is understood here to have expressed hope of an Anglo-French understanding and Poincare to have replied in a friendly vein.

When the texts of the personal letters are published—perhaps tomorrow—the public will be able to see whether there has been a mere exchange of amiable sentiment or whether the beginning of a foundation has been laid for a general European settlement.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30. — Exchange of personal letters between Premiers Ramsay Macdonald of England and Raymond Poincare of France in the effort to smooth out differences between the two countries is watched here with great interest as possibly denoting an era of new diplomacy.

It is recalled that after years of formal exchanges between the Mexican and American governments aimed at achieving a basis for American recognition of Mexico, President Harding conceived the idea of writing personally to President Obregon to get at the heart of the difficulty.

Then followed an exchange of personal letters which finally resulted in a satisfactory recognition basis.

SETTLEMENT WITH WIDOW

Crete Mills and Surety Pay $2,100 to Heirs of Its Salesman Drowned Near York.

Compensation Commissioner L. B. Frye has approved a settlement between the Crete Mills and its surety and the widow and two minor clidrne of Ottomar J. Dudek. The widow received $2,100 in settlement of a claim for the death of her husband who was drowned in a flood near York, September 28, 1923. The district court has also approved the settlement and entered findings that the husband did not die as a result of an accident arising out of and in the course of his employment. Commissioner Frye approved th esettlement because he believed the widow might have trouble to prove that the Crete Mills which was the husband's employer, could be held liable. Dudek had been warned not to enter the water. This would raise the question of wilful negligence. Under the compensation law the maximum allowance for a death is $5,250 in weekly payments.

The compensation commissioner has allowed Frank T. Paulson $15 a week for six weeks on account of an injury in the nature of hernia. He was employed by Max Mozer Co. of Lincoln October 17, 1923, when he was injured.

The commissioner has dismissed the application of Mathe Bartholomew who alleged he was injured about the ankle while employed by Gooel Pavey of Lincoln. Insufficient evidence to establish an accident is given as the reason for dismissal. The evidence showed that the applicant's ankle was weak long prior to his employment.

MORE OF THE SAME THING

Another City Hall Sag Discovered and Law Library Rushed to Place of Safety.

Discovery was made Wednesday morning at the city hall that the same drooping floor condition which brought condemnation from Commissioner Cowgill, exists above the offices of the legal department. These offices connect with Mr. Cowgill's room. It all is the result of a misplaced fourth floor partition.

The law library was rushed to safety while plasterers tore away the ceiling surface and house movers inserted the props under the sag. City employes, physically fit and able to lend a hand, assisted in the moving process. The safety of the city hall is not questioned. The condition of the fourth floor has been watched by the engineering department for months. Now that two offices are being replastered is considered the proper time to correct the floor condition.

WITH APOLOGY TO WOMEN

Commissioner Cowgill Showers Water From Street Flusher in Middle of Day.

With apologies to the women of Lincoln who were so unfortunate as to be on the downtown streets at noon, Commissioner Cowgill sent out his old motor street flusher on a round of service. He did not decide upon this policy early enough to urge the women to remain at home.

"When I looked over those muddy streets and crossing, I decided that something should be done," said the street department head. "I wouldn't flush the streets during the middle of the day if there were any other time in which it could be done. We can't flush them at night for the reason that the water would freeze and bring about a dangerous [illegible]."

This is the first flush of a downtown street has had in nearly two months. The new motor flusher is in the shop undergoing treatment. The old flusher is also motorized.

ASK THAT ALL BE PUNISHED

CONSERVATIONISTS DISAPPROVE ALL BLAME UPON FALL.

Declare That Whole Mess Should Be Cleaned Up and Fall Merely Final Means Utilized by Interests.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 30.—"Don't let all of the guilty be washed in the blood of Fall."

This is the cry of conservationists, who fearing that the senate oil lease probers may rest content with "getting" the former secretary of the interior, demand that congress and the administration clean up the whole conservation mess.

Albert B. Fall, they contend, is merely the means finally utilized by the oil interests toward accomplishing a purpose unsuccessfully sought for ten years. Since the days when conservation of the nation's natural resources first became an issue, they declare there has been relentless effort to break thru the barriers designed to guard these resources from looting and exploitation. And because the ramifications of the leasing of naval reserves and countless acres of other government lands now promises a scandal surpassing in importance the famous Ballinger-Pinchot coal lease fight during the Taft administration, the United Press today sought the views of Gifford Pinchot, crusader in that fight and now governor of Pennsylvania. Pinchot is still one of leading conservationists of the country and an authority on government land.

"Just what does the present situation mean?" Pinchot was asked.

"What it means," he replied, "is that the navy loses practically all its vast reserves of oil in the ground where they are permanently safe—and what the navy loses the Sinclairs and Dohenys gain.

"These oil reserves belong to the people of America, to be used for the benefit of the nation thru the navy. What the present situation means is that our future security as a people has been gambled away in order that a rich public property might be turned over to a small group of exploiters. If the naval oil reserves had been left in charge of the navy, this scandal never would have occurred. The thing of first importance now is to get them back into the hands of the navy where they will be safe."

"Do you think fraud has been committed?" Pinchot was asked.

"I believe these leases are fraudulent," he replied. "But whether fraudulent or not, they are directly contrary to the public interest. They should never have been made. They should be cancelled at once."

DR. UHLS OUT ON BOND

Physician Accused of Helping Murder Wealthy Hutchinson Recluse.

HUTCHINSON, Kas., Jan. 30.—Dr. Kenn B. Uhls, accused of murdering W. E. Gibbs, wealthy recluse, surrendered to authorities today and after pleading not guilty was released on bond set at $15,000.

Uhls, drug sanitorium proprietor, and Frank Leonard, a patient, are jointly accused with committing the murder. Authorities contend Uhls desired to recover $102,000 worth of stock in his sanitorium owned by Gibbs and that the murder was committed during an argument over the stock.

What We Forget Between 15 and 50

Schools teach, and nearly every home applies the rule against coffee and tea for children.

When middle age comes, a great many people remember the facts about the caffeine drug of coffee and tea, and how its regular use may disturb health. Often they have cause to remember what it has done to them.

How much better it would be not to forget—and avoid the penalties!

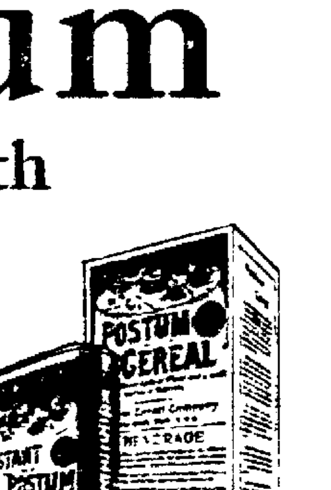

Postum is a pure cereal beverage—delightful, and safe for any age—at any time. Good for breakfast at home, for all the family; good for lunch at the club or restaurant; good with the evening meal; good with a late night dinner—good on any occasion. Postum satisfies, and it never harms.

Why not be friendly with health, all the time?

Postum for Health

"There's a Reason"

Your grocer sells Postum in two forms: Instant Postum [in tins] prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal [in packages] for those who prefer the flavor brought out by boiling fully 20 minutes. The cost of either form is about one-half cent a cup.

FORD'S NAME ELIMINATED

Detroit Man Not to Be Endorsed by People Progressives as Candidate.

OMAHA, Jan. 30.—Henry Ford's name will not be presented to the national convention of the peoples progressive party as a presidential candidate, delegates to the convention decided as the convention got under way this afternoon.

Ford's announcement that he favors President Coolidge in the forthcoming election, alienates him from the progressives movement and eliminates him as a presidential possibility, R. R. Pointer, Fort Dearborn, Mich., personal friend and booster of Ford said.

The convention was primarily called for the purpose of nominating Ford.

Eighteen delegates representing as many states were in their seats when the temporary chairman Roy Harrop, Omaha, called the meeting to order.

Resolutions denouncing the oil reserve system and the Teapot Dome scandals were presented and passed unanimously.

BARN AND HENHOUSE BURN

About $500 Loss in Early Morning Blaze on Outskirts of University Place.

[illegible] people were awakened by the whistle [illegible] of a barn [illegible] University Place Wednesday morning [illegible] reached the scene [illegible] too late to do anything but save adjoining buildings. The burned structures were a barn and chicken house belonging to H. M. [illegible] of the residents of the home. Quite a good deal of hay was burned and Mr. [illegible] figured his loss at something about $50. Nothing is known of the origin of the fire.

SUSPECT DOG OF MADNESS

CROSS FIRE CRITICISM OVER PUTTING TO DEATH.

Two Girls Attacked by Dog and at Least One of Them Not Properly Responding to the Treatment.

That a dead dog tells no tales is brought seriously home in revelations by a physician in charge of two girls bitten by the dog, the humane society and the city health department. A cross-fire of criticism is being directed by the society head at failure of physicians to report and by a physician at failure of the society to keep the dog alive until his true condition was known.

The story released Wednesday is the aftermath of an incident three weeks old. Martha Brenning, fourteen, 112 L street, has not properly responded to treatment and, according to Dr. Carl H. Bastron, attending physician, the pasteur treatment may be administered.

"The wound on her leg has not healed," he said. "I have just held a conference with Dr. Chapman, superintendent of health, in regard to his furnishing of the necessary serums."

Dr. Bastron denounced what he termed the premature killing of the dog.

"Every care should be taken and certainly the dog should have been examined before it was destroyed," he said.

Superintendent McClain of the humane society said that about three weeks ago he was notified that a cross dog could be found at First and L streets. He said that he made inquiry but was not informed that the dog had actually bitten any person. He watched the animal for three days at the shelter and then determined that it should be destroyed. This was done.

"It is the duty of the doctors and others to notify us when they know of an instance where a dog has bitten a child or grown person. When such knowledge reaches us, we hold the animal for investigation until we are able to determine whether or not he suffers from 'rabies.'"

HELP FARMER HELP SELF

Up to Business Men to Show Him How to Sell at Profit, Mark Woods Tells Realtors.

The whole future of this country depends on the prosperity of the farmer, and it is up to the business man to help him learn the ways of prosperity, Mark Woods told the Lincoln board of realtors, Wednesday.

"We have had huge crops for four years," Mr. Woods said, "yet prices are slipping, and this in spite of the fact that the farmer had less corn on hand this winter than ever before. Production is fast overtaking production, and farms are being worn out.

"Experiment stations tell us that it cost the Nebraska farmer 82 cents to raise a bushel of corn last year, and the average price has been around 62 cents. The same is true in all of the five states that raise the bulk of the world's corn—Iowa alone produces three-fourths of it.

"You have heard all this before, and you have heard high freight rates blamed. But freight rates can't be reduced, because they are the outcome of organized transportation, manned by organized labor. Everything else in the country save agricultural products is produced thru organization and sold at a profit, and onl yat a profit. The farmer must organize and learn to sell at a profit. Corn prices rule meat prices, yet only one-fifth of the vast crop goes to market as corn, so only one-fifth must have the price controlled in order to enable the farmer to operate at a profit instead of at a loss.

"Our chamber of commerce, and every other in the country should take a hand with the agricultural colleges and farm organizations to teach the farmer to market his corn in an orderly manner, so it will be sold when it is needed, and at a price that will be above, not below, the cost of production. Business can well afford to do this—It can't afford not to, for everything else, in the long run, depends on agriculture."

CORNER ON EGGS.

CHICAGO, Jan. 30. — Roy Chapman Andrews announces a corner on the egg market—dinosaur eggs, 12,000,000 years old.

Andrews, a noted explorer, explained that he tapped a large cache of eggs on an Asiatic expedition.

He is willing to sell one or two.

Price, $5,000 per egg.

DOCTORS WILL BE HEARD

Inquiry by State Board Into Status of Dr. Angus and Dr. Madison of Omaha.

An inquiry started at the request of the state board of examiners for the department of public welfare was to be held at the capitol Wednesday afternoon. The status of Dr. George Angus of Omaha and Dr. A. B. Madison of Omaha is the subject of inquiry before Dr. J. D. Case, head of the department. Dr. Case said these physicians were found guilty of violating the anti-narcotic law more than one year ago. They were tried in federal court at a time when H. H. Antles was head of the department of public welfare.

The board of examiners of the department comprises Dr. J. E. Spatz of Fairfield, Dr. E. T. McGuire of Fremont and Dr. H. J. Lehnhoff of Lincoln. They will inquire into the matter and report recommendations to Dr. Case. Assistant Attorney General Lee Basye will attend the hearing at the request of the department of public welfare.

BOYS UP FOR TRIAL HAVE A COMPLAINT

Charged by the Police With Accosting Woman on the Street, They Make a Counter Charge.

Trial for Frank Fisher, eighteen, 1724 North Twenty-third; Calixt Ganbain, eighteen, 1536 Q, and Ernest Billings, twenty, 1500 P, alleged mashers who said they were students, was continued until Thursday morning in police court, Wednesday. The boys were arrested at 11:45 Tuesday night, when it is claimed, they attempted to induce the wife of a police officer to take a ride with them. She told them she would go in and ask her mother, but instead called the police station, where her husband was on duty, and he responded to the call with a brother officer. They are reported to have impressed the alleged mashers that mashing is a very uncertain pleasure.

Fisher, it was said, was driving the car. He and Gambain remained in the car, they told their friends, while Billings got out to talk to a woman he said he knew. They claim they did not know what he said to the woman, but that after waiting for him a few moments a couple of police officers arrived and attacked them. Fisher, it was said, lost a tooth in the attack. They did not resist the officers, they say. Fisher's friends said a complaint would be filed against Officer Waite and perhaps against the other policeman who accompanied him.

The boys say that Billings thought he knew the woman he accosted on the street and that no harm was meant. The police officers tell a different story.

Fisher's mother said the police were profane in language used toward the boys.

NEW COMMITTEES NAMED

Grani Exchange Business to Be in Hands of Four Groups This Year.

President Hammond of the Lincoln Grain Exchange has appointed standing committees for the ensuing year as follows:

Arbitration—B. M. Ford, chairman, C. O. Morgan, H. H. Kramer.

Transportation—W. S. Whitten, chairman; H. H. Wintersteen, Robert Buehler.

Appeals—John D. Taylor, chairman, Miss Rena Iveson, T. M. Waxman.

Discount—Cobe S. Venner, chairman, J. M. Paul, T. R. Samuelson.

The nomination of Frederick I. Thomas, William S. Hill and Bert. Haney to be members of the shipping board were confirmed by the senate.

SENATE TO INQUIRE INTO FALL'S HEALTH

Norris attacked Edward B. McLean, Washington publisher, who said he loaned Fall $100,000 in checks but that the checks were returned before they were cashed.

"I believe we know that things aren't done that way and we have a right to disbelieve his testimony taken under oath," Norris said.

Norris referred to McLean's story as a "cock and bull yarn."

"McLean's story is one of the best evidences that there was fraud and corruption in this lease," he said.

Three definite points of dissension cropped up between the chief executive and the "scandal" investigators at the capital:

1.—Announcement by Bascom Slemp, secretary to the president that Mr. Coolidge's special counsel named last night, would go to work before being confirmed by the senate.

2.—The defi of Secretary of the Navy Denby, who reaffirmed his sanction of the oil reserve leases and made light of the threat of congress to impeach him.

3.—Efforts of administration leaders under personal direction of President Coolidge "to tone down" the Walsh resolution calling upon the president to appoint prosecutors.

Mr. Coolidge's selection of special counsel to prosecute the leasing cases both civilly and criminally if evidence warrants, occasioned much surprise.

He chose Thomas Watt Gregory, democrat of Texas, attorney general in the Wilson administration, and Silas H. Strawn, republican of Chicago.

The senate resolution providing for employment of special counsel calls for their confirmation by the senate.

Partner of Payne.

Strawn, unknown here, is a law partner of John Barton Payne a close friend of the late President Harding. He is described as "one of the best known lawyers of the middle west," having been prominent in the Illinois bar association. He has never been in politics.

Gregory was a special assistant attorney general in anti-trust cases before Mr. Wilson named him attorney general.

Mr. Coolidge wants Strawn and Gregory to go to work at once on the leasing cases. They will meet here this week.

Senator Walsh, Montana, leading investigator of the Teapot Dome scandal, expressed apprehension in the senate, that the president intended to put his counsel to work without waiting for the senate's approval and said if that were done, he would demand that no part of the $100,000 appropriation for special counsel be used to pay them.

The house resolution calling for appropriation of $100,000 was taken up today by the senate appropriation committee.

Plans to bring about impeachment of Secretary Denby and Attorney General Daugherry were being discussed. Resolutions demanding their removal will be considered when the resolution authorizing the president to prosecute the leasing cases has been disposed of.

The house naval affairs committee today had Denby, Admiral J. K. Robison, head of the bureau of engineering, and Admiral Lattimer, judge advocate of the navy, under summons to tell what use of fund obtained from the naval oil without specific authority of congress.

Physicians who have been treating the former secretary of the interior Fall told the senate investigating committee today under oath that Fall [illegible] to come to Washington [illegible] The members of the committee questioned the physicians fully on [illegible] every detail of Fall's illness.

The physicians again suggested that a subcommittee go to the home of J. W. Zevely, Sinclair attorney, where Fall is staying, and examine him there.

While the committee voted against a move to carry out this suggestion, it was indicated that some members believed it advisable to go to Fall if he is unable to appear within the next few days.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The senate appropriations committee today voted to report favorably to the senate the house bill appropriating $100,000 to prosecute oil land cases but attached an amendment making the fund available only after the president submits the names of counsel he has chosen to the senate for confirmation.

As amended, the resolution provides that "any counsel employed by the president under the authority of this resolution shall be appointed by and with the advice and consent of the senate."

The amendment was unanimously agreed to in the committee.

DRY IDEA IS RAPID GAINER

"PUSSYFOOT" JOHNSON FINDS SPREAD SPEEDY.

Long List of States Which Have Abandoned Traffic or Enacted Partial Laws Against It.

By Wm. E. "Pussyfoot" Johnson.

In all history, no social movement has ever made such rapid progress throut th eworld as has the prohibition idea since the adoption of the eighteenth amendment. Since America, the strongest and most influential nation in the world, took this high stand, projects looking to the elimination of the drink menace began springing up in nearly every corner of the world. Movements already initiated took on a new life, all so threatening the alcoholic overlords that an international organization was recently effected to combat the spread of the prohibition movement.

Since America went dry, practically every parliament or law-making body on the face of the earth has been grappling with this question. Without a single exception every one of them has been seeking to find some way to lessen, restrict, discourage or prohibit this degrading traffic. Not for twenty years has any civilized parliament looked upon the drink traffic as a business that should be encouraged or promoted as any useful business is ordinarily encouraged or promoted. Every one of them has been trying to get rid of the business, either in whole or in part.

To co-ordinate these dry activities, the world league against alcoholism was formed four years ago, an organization made up of the anti-saloon league of America and similar organizations in more than thirty of the leading nations of the world. This organization is already achieving marked success because the various national dry bodies, instead of shooting at random at a menace that has become an international one, now work together just as the numerous wet national concerns work together, inspired by appetite, greed and cohesive power of public plunder.

Alarming to Liquor Men.

It is by no means strange that the international liquor interests are more or less in a panic when they look out of their cyclone cellars, for so many things alarming to them have happened since the American decision.

Iceland, Turkey and Finland have gone completely dry. Norway and Belgium have gone dry so far as distilled spirits are concerned. Japan, Italy, England, Northern Ireland and many of the central European states have enacted laws to restrict the traffic.

Four of the independent Indian states have adopted prohibition. Several of the South American and Mexican states have adopted legislation greatly restraining the traffic.

Zanzibar protectorate has adopted prohibition applying to everybody except Christians and there are mighty few Christians there. Egypt, where the drink traffic is licensed under the law governing "inconvenient, dangerous and undesirable institutions," has already quit issuing any new licenses and is planning to eliminate the whole traffic.

Practically the only obstacle to be overcome is the tangle of existing capitulations with so-called "Christian governments." In France, where the great fight is being waged against distilled spirits the drys have nearly 60 members in the chamber of deputies.

Recently a petition signed by 450,000 German citizens was presented to the German government asking the right to vote on the licensing question.

In Holland, a little more than a year ago, a great dry demonstration was held at the Hague in which 30,000 drys marched in a processiong carrying 700 banners demanding the right to vote on the liquor question.

Started Sixty Years Ago.

Why this movement has spread so widely throut the world is worth considering with care and without fear. The wets would like to make the world believe that the prohibition idea spread all over creation because it was a failure. The people in the United States began trying out the dry policy more than sixty years ago, slowly at first, but finally increasing with great rapidity, until thirty-two of our states and 12,000 municipalities had adopted the prohibition idea.

The American people are not fond of failures. If an American has a piece of machinery that won't work, he scraps it. If a law won't work, the people repeal it. If it is a horse or [illegible] that won't work, the owner [illegible] it off for another. Many people even scrap their wives and get rid of them when they won't work. The American people scrapped the [illegible] system because, after trying it out for a century, it proved a failure. They adopted the prohibition system because after trying it out in [illegible] municipalities and in 32 states it proved so much more satisfactory [illegible] system that it was [illegible] into the constitution itself [illegible]

THE BANKER'S TROUBLES.

Your Problems

BY MARY GORDON

Dear Mary Gordon: Once more regarding an Indiana art company. I sent them $7.75 for their "outfit," when it came, it consisted of two cushions tops, unbleached, muslin very poorly stamped, two articles supposed to be lamp shades, also very imperfectly stamped, coated with a material like sticky fly paper, some dyes in bottles, some wooden meat skewers and a small pinch of absorbent cotton, supposed to be wrapped about the end of the skewer to make a brush, no wonder they contract to buy all you will make for two years, they know you will be unable to make anything salable with such materials. I have painted a good deal and fell for their plausible add, thinking I could earn some money at home, but found that instead of earning, I had thrown away money that I needed for necessary things.—One of the Suckers.

P. S. Tell Just Eighteen not to waste her money on any of these "home work" propositions.

A. It is regrettable, but those alluring-sounding projects are nearly always frauds, I fear.

Dear Mary Gordon: I am in love with a young man a year older than myself. Now he is staying with some of my people and he has left home because his people would not treat him just right and now he wants to go back home but his parents don't want him to because they know if he does there is sure to be trouble with a brother of his, and what I want to know is whether I should write to his folks and explain to them that he is getting homesick and would like to see them. Now he tells me he loves me and if I do he can never forgive me. And I want to try and help him out as much as possible and I would like to write and not let him know about it and Dear Mary I wish you could answer this for I am leaving for New York next week and would like to know as soon as possible if it would be all right—In Love.

A. I believe I wouldn't become involved in family affairs, if I were you. If he had a sister and you were friends, you might casually tell her some time that he grieves for his home, but as it is, I don't see how you could do it. Probably both he and the family would resent any interference from outside. The young man is better off away from home, if, as you say, his parents did not treat him as they should and there would be trouble with his brother if he returned.

Dear Mary Gordon: I am a young girl in my late teens and I am engaged to a young man seven years my senior. What would you suggest for a birthday present. I haven't thought of anything that would suit me. I don't agree with the girl that signed herself Just a Jazz Baby. I hope for her own sake she will find out her error before it is too late.—Just a Blue Eyed Baby.

A. Why not give him a subscription to a magazine which he would like, perhaps on his favorite hobby, which might be motoring, radio, etc. Or give him a billfold, or something for his room.

Dear Mary Gordon: I have been [illegible] a steady reader of your column. Do you know what happened to Jess? I certainly did enjoy her letters.

Do you think I would be able to [illegible] "black." If so, what [illegible]

Thanking you, I am—Susan [illegible]

[illegible]

Dear Mary Gordon: We are both [illegible] We would like to hear from some boys on this subject—Blue and Brown Eyes.

A. Nothing to do but let 'em get mad, I guess. Yes, I think the boy considers you're pretty easy, if you let him get mushy.

I, too, would welcome letters from boys on this subject.

Clever Portfolio.

To make a portfolio for writing materials while traveling cover two pieces of heavy corrugated card board about 8 by 6 inches with two widths of figured novelty ribbon or chintz. It is best to glue the ribbon to the cardboard so it will lie smoothly. Line the pieces with solid colored ribbon to harmonize with the outside covering and tie them closely along one side with six small bows of baby ribbon to match. Allow two streamers of half-inch ribbon to open and close the portfolio.

Use bands of elastic, covered with shirred ribbon a half inch wide to hold the writing materials in position. Equip the portfolio with writing paper, envelopes, blotter and pen.

Cherry Cake.

Suitable for a February birthday or a Washington's birthday party: One cup sugar, 3-4 cup butter or other shortening, 2 eggs, 2 tablespoons sour milk, 1 scant teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon each cinnamon, nutmeg and allspice, 1 cup cherries (use the canned with the juice drained off), 1 1-2 cups flour. Bake in a moderate oven as loaf or layer cake. The icing takes 1 box confectioner's sugar, enough liquid from a bottle of cherries to mix into a paste, and make thick enough to spread. Spread halves of cherries over the icing.

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

It was noted that the Lindell and the Lincoln hotels were not losing money during the progress of the senatorial fight, even tho the wear and tear on the carpets and flooring was terrible.

Captain Henry H. Coleman, a veteran of the civil war and for fifteen years an employe of the Burlington freight office died at his home in east Lincoln.

Mayor Graham surprised the council by returning the gas ordinance providing for gas at $1.25 a thousand feet.

B. F. Bailey left for New York to attend the meeting of the executive committee of the national homeopathic society, of which he was president.

A bill was before the house for a [illegible] levy for the support of the state university. From 1889 to 1899 the attendance had grown from 448 to [illegible]

TO ROB BABOONS FOR GLANDS.

LONG BEACH, Cal. (By Mail.)—Long Beach will become the center of the gland industry if Capt. Thomas W. Kemp and a number of Los Angeles and Long Beach medical men do not change their minds. A number of doctors have proposed sending Captain Kemp to Africa to secure baboon glands, said to be far superior to those of goats, which are now used to make the old young.

PATRIOT COMPANY'S PLANS

Expects to Develop Truck and Body Making Business at the Havelock Plant.

The unloading of several hundred Chevrolet cars at the Havelock plant of the Patriot Motors company led to a report Wednesday that it was to become an assembling plant for that make of car or a possible western manufactory of them.

George J. Woods of Woods Brothers, spoile dthe story, however, when he said that a portion of the plant there was a bonded warehouse, and that these cars were being stored there for distribution later. They have been coming in for the last few days at the rate of three or four carloads a day.

Mr. Woods said that the future of the Patriot plant, in the view of its new owners, lay in the development of a market for the trucks and bodies that it was originally designed to make. The sales organization built up since the transfer to an organization of local creditors a few years ago has been a small, but efficient one. The business made money last year with only a part of the machinery in operation.

The new owners are working now on a much greater sales organization. Experts in the various departments will be brought to the city from successful plants elsewhere, and in a few months it is expected that the real development of this as a local industry will be begun.

The plan is to keep to the truck assembling and body making lines, and not to engage in the manufacture or assembling of any cars.

CELEBRATE GOLDEN WEDDING

McCook Couple Entertain at Dinner and Reception.

McCOOK, Neb., Jan. 30.—Fifty years ago Monday, in Livingston county, Illinois, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel D. McClain of McCook were united in marriage. About 150 friends assisted them last evening in celebrating their golden wedding at the McClain home, where an informal reception was held. A pre-celebration dinner was served by the McClains to about twenty-five relatives and friends at the Monte Cristo hotel and cafe Sunday evening. The McClains have resided in McCook and vicinity for thirty-five years, and a host of friends join in congratulations.

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., Jan. 30.—Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wehling are celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage this week at their home in this city. It was January [illegible], 1874, when Miss Meta Scharp and Mr. Wehling were married in this community. They lived on a farm near [illegible] until several years ago, when they retired and moved to this city. To mark the anniversary [illegible] of the Bethel Evangelical church, conducted an appropriate service conveying the "golden milestone" message.

WINS MANY SUPPORTERS AND STIRS UP OPTIMISM.

Mention of "Cooperation of German People" by American Expert on Allied Commission Brings Friends.

BERLIN, Jan. 30.—Gen. Charles G. Dawes, heading the committee of experts, which arrived here to investigate German finances, already has won many supporters and stirred up a little optimism.

Germany was in the position of a patient on the operating table, awaiting the surgeon's knife. The allied and American experts came along to probe for what ailed her and Dawes attitude from the start inspired confidence and acted as an anaesthetic.

When the general, who is chairman of the experts commission, stepped from the train, puffing furiously on his inevitable pipe, he permitted himself a brief statement of some dozen words, in which he did not fail to mention the "Co-operation of the German people" in what was about to be done. This made a great hit with the Germans.

GREGORY OFF FOR EAST

Former Attorney General to Help Conduct Court Action in Oil Probe.

AUSTIN, Tex., Jan. 30.—Thomas Watt Gregory, former attorney general, named with Silas H. Strawn of Chicago to conduct court action in the oil reserve leasing scandal will leave here tonight for Washington.

"I am going down to see what they want us to do," Gregory said. "Anything further that is made public will have to come from Washington."

Gregory conferred with State Attorney General Keeling today regarding his services as counsel for the state of Texas in litigation before the United States supreme court over the Texas-Oklahoma boundary.

TO WHITEN SKIN WITH LEMON

The only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juice of two lemons with three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents. Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quarter pint of the most wonderful skin whitener, softener and beautifier.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck, arms and hands. It can not irritate. Famous stage beauties use it to bring that clear, youthful skin and rosy-white complexion; also to soothe red, rough or chapped hands and face. You must mix this remarkable bleach yourself. It can not be bought ready to use because it acts best immediately after it is prepared.—Advertisement.

LATEST MARKETS

CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—Grains opened irregular on the Chicago board of trade today.

Wheat started higher, influenced by strength in foreign markets. A decrease in visible supplies and good export business overnight, along with reports that France will increase bread prices February 1, were strengthening factors.

Corn showed weakness at the start when reports from primary markets showed the country offerings more free. Strength developed later, however, with reports that Germany in the near future would import large patch of American corn.

Oats sold higher with good feeding demand in evidence and indications of better [illegible] demand.

Provisions opened unchanged.

Chicago Tribune Report.

CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—Some of the stronger [illegible] traders who were bullish on corn [illegible] were much lower and who took profits on bulges of late, have bought wheat quietly for several days.

[illegible] of the buying in wheat yesterday was said to be for oriental account. Those who feel bearish on wheat [illegible] confidence in conditions expect the market to hold within narrow limits and to meet selling on the bulges.

While several local traders have declared the [illegible] side of corn there are still a number who feel that highest prices have not been seen.

Wet weather and the breaking up of country roads are expected to interfere with the movement. Snow's comment on the possibility of light farm stocks of most grains was considered as bullish.

The failure of the oats movement to increase after the recent advance has attracted renewed buying power.

Export sales of all position estimated as high as 750,000 bushels to the United Kingdom and continent included were 16,[illegible] bushels hard winter and 50,000 bushels durum.

Grain Market Opinions.

Bogdan & Martin: We suggest caution in selling wheat on declines. Corn will need continued buying to sustain advances.

Thomson McKinnon: We believe the next important price movement especially in wheat will be upward.

Logan & Bryan: The trend looks forward.

Stein Alstrin: We are bullish on wheat for the long pull, but would wait for breaks to buy corn.

Harris Winthrop & Co.: A return to cold weather might create considerable apprehension over the new wheat crop.

Clement Curtis & Co.: It remains to be seen whether buyers will retain and add to their holdings.

Hulburd Warren & Chandler: We remain bearish on corn and oats.—Lamson.

Journal of Commerce Report.

CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—Wheat bulls were much encouraged yesterday by the character of the buying power which was credited largely to prominent local and eastern speculators, now in the south and west on vacation. Livermore, Howell and [illegible] were mentioned as the leading buyers.

[illegible] believes eventually corn will sell around the dollar mark. Other operators are [illegible] in their opinions, some believing it too early to start a bull movement.—Lamson.

Journal of Commerce Report.

CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—Much of the selling yesterday in Dan. Boone undoubtedly represented liquidation by stockholders who subscribed to the company's recent offering of 82,500 shares at $25 a share, in anticipation of a wider market and who were disappointed over the delay in action of the governing committee in listing the stock on the New York exchange.

Inland steel earned $3.87 a share on the stock in 1923. This compares with $1.13 in 1922.

Current assets are placed at 27,000,000; liabilities 3,440,000.—Lamson.

Chicago, Jan. 31.—The fifty cents extra dividend on steel is considered by financial interests an infallible indication of prosperity in 1924.—Lamson.

Herald-Examiner Report.

CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—Substantial support is evident in the grain markets. Actual conditions appear little changed, but it looks as if the trade is willing to bull wheat if given a fair chance. Much of the buying was attributed to a prominent operator who is wintering on the Pacific coast.—Lamson.

Omaha Livestock.

OMAHA, Jan. 30.—Cattle—Receipts, 7,800. Competition for the limited number of choice cattle here created a steady market for anything of this kind and best prime beeves brought as high as $10. Best cows and heifers also sold steady. On the general run of plain and unfinished beef steers and cows bids and sales were 10@25c lower than Monday and business was very dull at the decline. In stockers and feeders demand held up well and prices ruled strong for good kinds. Representative sales of beef steers:

No.	Av.	Price	No.	Av.	Price
40	1092	$8.50	17	1018	$8.65
21	1167	8.65	22	1059	8.80
19	1195	9.00	21	1022	9.00
6	1461	9.25	21	1156	10.00

Hogs—Receipts, 18,500. Continued liberal supplies added further dullness to local trade this morning with sales in any direction few and far between. A little stuff went to shippers at around 15c lower levels, while packers took a determined stand for a 25c lower scale, but met with no success on the initial trades. Representative sales of hogs:

No.	Av.	Price	No.	Av.	Price
[illegible]	221	$6.65	75	254	$6.70
75	[illegible]	6.70	59	227	6.75

Sheep—Receipts, 10,500. Local packers made an effort to fill their requirements on somewhat lower prices this morning, but salesmen were unwilling to let go at a cut and trade was slow and without feature as a result.

OMAHA, Jan. 30.—Cattle—Receipts, 7,800; market, steady; yearlings, $6.75@10.75; steers, $7.25@10.00; cows and heifers, $2.25@8.00; stockers and feeders, $4.00@8.10; calves, $3.50@10.75; bulls and stags, $4.00@6.00.

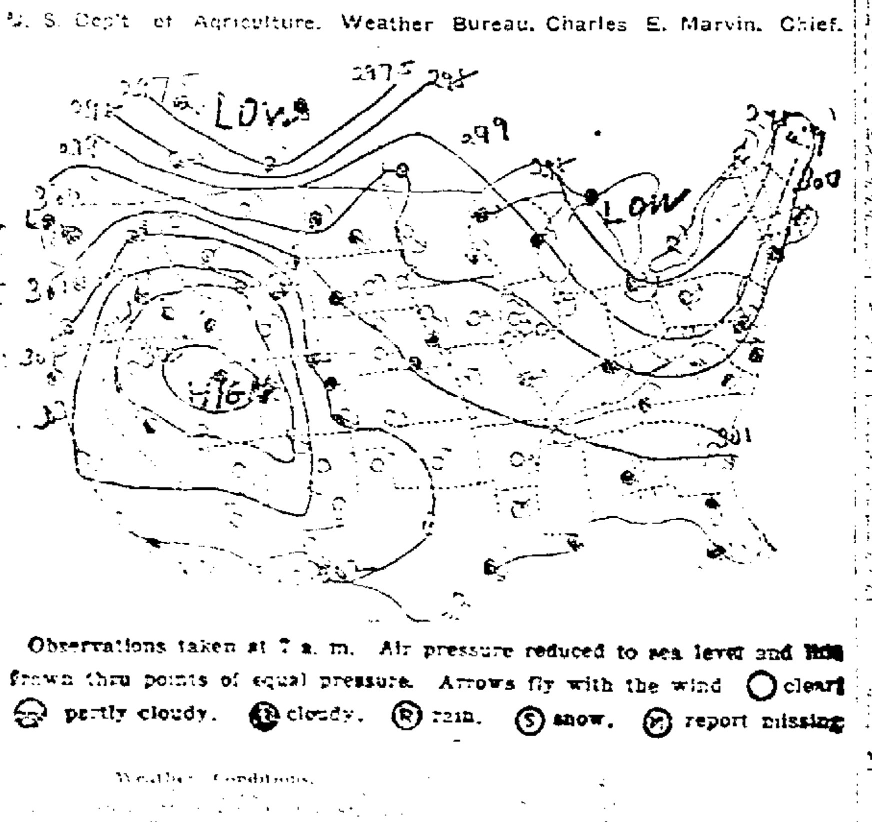

Hogs—Receipts, 18,500; market around 15c lower; bulk, $6.35@6.65; top, $6.70.

Sheep—Receipts, 10,500; market, steady; yearlings, $9.75@12.00; wethers, $6.50@9.00; lambs, $12.25@13.50; ewes, $4.50@8.25.

Coming Events in Stocks.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—The extra disbursement by U. S. steel and especially its excellent report of last quarter earnings should stimulate a strong opening this morning. The plethora of money the large purchasing power of the public and a gradually increasing demand for stock point to substantially higher with the advent of spring. Underlying market factors suggest the staying long of good issues.—Lamson.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—U. S. liberty bonds were quoted here today as follows: 3½'s, 98.11; first 4¼'s, 99.15; second 4¼'s, 99.13; third 4¼'s, 100; fourth 4¼'s, 99.17; new 4¼'s, 100.3.

News Summary.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—Financial News says: General impression is steel will advance to 110 or higher, by end of this week and other steels will sympathize with it.

Stock Market Opinions.

Clark Childs & Co.: If the steel market is favorable, may have a substantial upward movement.

Harris Winthrop & Co.: The general list looks as if it were headed higher.

Post & Flagg: The tone of the market was strong.

Logan & Bryan: We believe the tendency of prices will be upward.

Thomson McKinnon: Good profits should not be overlooked.

Broadan Wall says: The United States steel statement and the confidence displayed by directors increasing the dividend should go a long way toward bolstering the stock market. Assurance has been somewhat lacking lately.

New York Herald says: Pools have been trying to advance sugar shares. The large business in refined sugars at five cents and the advance in refined prices yesterday gave them something to work on.

New York Am says: Buying in Pullman is reported to be by new interests. Under new management company has made big stride in construction of freight cars and automobile bodies.

J. H. Ware jr. says: Steels, rails, coppers, oil and sugars are intrinsically cheap and should work much higher. Steels and rails should be the features today. We suggest, however, taking profits on substantial bulges and replacing stocks on subsequent dips.—Lamson.

Wall Street Journal Review.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—United States Steel's unexpectedly large net of $49,958,050 in the fourth quarter of 1923, the largest of any three months since the close of 1918, and the authorization of a 50 cents extra dividend, created the most buoyant opening of the stock market of recent months in the industrials.

Steel jumped practically three points on lumped transactions of 7,000 shares on which a price of 106 was fixed. Another 1,500 shares of Steel turned over at 105⅝, and the stock maintained tremendous activity at around this figure in the first fifteen minutes.

Wild excitement reigned around the Steel post and it was six minutes before its opening was printed on the tape.

Large advances were noted elsewhere. American Can opened at 120, up 2⅜, Baldwin was up 1⅞ and Bethlehem Steel 2⅛.

Opening prices: Pan-American Petroleum 56, up 2; Studebaker 102⅝, up 1⅛; Reading 58¼; General Electric 215⅜, up 3⅜; Baldwin 124⅝, up 1⅞; New York Central 104⅜, up 1⅛; Bethlehem Steel 60, up 2⅛; Marland 36⅜, up ⅜; Industrial Alcohol 75⅝, up ½; Woolen 73⅝, up ¾; Southern railway 44⅞, up ½; General Motors 14⅝; American Can opened 1,200 shares at 120, up 2⅜; Pan-American Petroleum "B" 49, up 3.

Remembering Lee.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: Three factors have served to call more than the usual attention this year to the anniversary of the birth of the South's chief hero, General Robert E. Lee, altho the occasion is always a holiday, with varying degrees of recognition, in many communities below the Mason and Dixon line. The general was born on January 19, 1807, so, this being the one hundred and seventeenth year since, there is no reason of the calendar that makes his anniversary a particularly noteworthy one.

Down near Atlanta, however, where the sculptor, Gutzon Gorglum, with a large corps of assistants has been engaged for many months in converting the whole side of Stone Mountain into a memorial to the confederacy, the day was very appropriately observed because so much of the work has been completed that the sculptor was able to unveil in the presence of a huge throng and several southern governors a large section of the monument, including the twenty-two foot portrait of the great commander.

At Lexington, Va., too, where the general and members of his family lie entombed beneath the chapel on the campus of the university, he endowed, the occasion was also an important one. It had been planned to build around and above the memorial chapel a large auditorium for the students of Washington and Lee University. Meeting on this patron's birthday, the trustees of the school wisely decided to look elsewhere for an auditorium site and leave undisturbed the general's resting place, intact as he built it.

Contributing still further to a renewed interest in the military leader of the confederacy is the presentation in America of the play "Robert E. Lee," written by John Drinkwater, the Englishman who earlier made a drama of chapters in the life of Abraham Lincoln. The play, by all accounts, is not the triumph that its predecessor was. Yet it does a great deal to show the interest abroad in an American hero and to stimulate appreciation of him in his own land.

At a day when the world is striving to repair the damage and heal the wounds of another war, it is not amiss to look back upon the times and the figures of an earlier struggle. A measure of the charity and the forgiveness which followed that heartbreaking period would do a great deal toward restoring amity and order to world affairs now.

Our Fool Schooling System.

New York Commercial: When the banks of this country are besieged—as they are—by young men who know no trade and have no special training, but who seek work of a clerical character paying comparatively small wages, it indicates a surplus of labor—such as it is. But when the memberships of the useful and productive trades, paying good wages to those who have mastered them, dwindle and practically no young men seek to be apprenticed to such callings—as is the case—the aspect of things industrial, so far as our growing youth may be concerned takes on quite another hue.

Our public school system may be an admirable thing—some of us had no educational advantages other than it supplies—but it seems to the thinking man that it fails in its work of really educating the youth of the land when it only teaches them to shun the skilled trades and seek only the simplest form of clerical work for which no preliminary training is necessary.

The boys of the land, when they were not schooled, did not scorn to become carpenters, bricklayers, masons, blacksmiths, wheelwrights, painters, machinists, printers, millwrights, wagonmakers, harnessmakers, foundrymen, cabinetmakers, shipbuilders or even ditch diggers. Many men now living can recall a day when men versed in the details of a good trade could be found the country over. The village cooper was respected as was the village shoemaker. The wagonmaker lived well and held up his head. Now also the sons of both hang their heads in shame if anybody recalls the fact that their parents were journeymen. The sons know no trade and can do nothing well. They have been "educated" and therefore they are above working at building a house, making a shoe or coopering a firkin, as the case may be.

We have too many "gentlemen" in this country. Of course, they are only fake gentlemen and hardly self supporting, but they fondly deceive themselves into thinking they are the real thing. They know how to read and write—and seldom do either—but they can wear white collars and the clothing that they foolishly believe distinguishes them as men of class and quality in the community in which they live.

Our fool system of teaching pupils in public schools anything but that with which they can earn a living has much to answer for. The worst of its crimes is when it transforms a boy from a manly younster into a sissy too good to soil his hands with work of a constructive kind.

Last Year's Similes.

The best similes for 1923 have been selected by Frank J. Wilstach, author of "A Dictionary of Similes." It appears from this collection, and the one made for last year, that the making of similes goes on as unceasingly as the revolving of this globe. A few of those lately made follow:

Freckles, like rust spots.—Willa Cather.

Harmless as filtered water. —Thomas Beer.

Her head poised like a parachute. —Zona Gale.

About as neat as a coal-heaver's nails.—Anon.

Different as Piers Plowman and Mr. Pickwick.—Anon.

About as much privacy as a statue in the park.—Anon.

Her mind is like a sundial: It records only pleasantness.—Anon.

Dumb as the man who thought a football coach has four wheels.—Anon.

Verse .. .. as liquid and persuasive as drifting in a gondola.—Conrad Aiken.

Married men are like Ford cars: You can tell them by their clutch.—Anon.

So thin that she could fall thru a flute and never strike a note.—Anon.

He ran for third base like a wholesale bootlegger pursued by revenuers.—Anon.

The New Lady of Downing Street.

New York Word: If the ghosts of the fair ladies who, thru the generations, have presided over the social activities of the famous red brick house in Downing street, London, ever meet in the dark corners to gossip over their successors it would have been interesting to have heard the comments when Isobel Macdonald, the twenty-year-old daughter of the new premier, passed thru its musty rooms on a tour of inspection.

It is easy to imagine how some would turn up their noses at the daughter of a labor leader—imposing creatures like Lady Palmerston, and probably the Duchess of Beaconsfield. Even Mrs. Gladstone might be a bit resentful of the intrusion. For in the days when these ladies held forth in the historic chambers it was generally believed that laborers were only fit to be hewers of wood and drawers of water.

But Margot Asquith is too good a "mixer" and too much of a sport to even lift her eyebrows, and Dame Lloyd George is probably mindful of the fact that she was escorted there by the graduate of a shoemaker's shop. If Miss Macdonald is a true daughter of her father we may be sure that Downing street will suffer nothing in comparison with other days; and under the ministrations of youth it may even perk up a bit.

Who knows but that the ghost of Pitt, the bachelor, snooping around amid the scenes of his sufferings, may not discover a preference for Macdonald's pretty daughter over [illegible] pretentious ladies he has seen about?

'Twas Ever Thus.

[illegible] Observer-Dispatch: said an observant citizen recently: "The finest sight I see in my city is that great army of young people pouring out of the high school in mid-afternoon. When I am tempted to view their manners with alarm I remember that I once belonged to that army of youth and that I had my censors and my critics."

'Twas ever thus that the older generations deplored the tendencies of the younger and opined that the world was going to the dogs. But of course in every generation there has been something deeper and finer than these pessimisitc critics were able to see, and which is hard for some to see today. For, somehow, each generation seems to have done well in its appointed work. At least the nation has grown better and wiser thru the years. The farheralded "dogs" have not yet got us as yet.

The generation that is now passing from the stage of life produced among others, its Roosevelt. The one before that gave us Lincoln and his colaborers. The present generation, we may be sure, has somebody in training whose name will shine with equal lustre among the notables of the past. The dignity of man is not without its witnesses in any generation. But it takes time to prove this fact.

The trouble is not with youth but with age. With those palsied intellects ever looking backward and regarding other and younger people as inferiors. With those who, grown old, have left their human sympathies behind them. To paraphrase Emerson: Give our youth health and its day and it will make the pomp of emperors ridiculous.

Individual Responsibility.

Ohio State Journal: There is a great deal of sentimental talk in favor of old-age pensions. The poor old man is pictured as having worn himself out in the support of his family and the service of his country, all his life the patient tool of the capitalistic system and at last its helpless victim. Would we, the sentimentalists ask, deny the faithful old fellow a little help when he can work no longer?

There is not much in such talk and it is distinctly harmful. Let men not pity themselves. No man who feels that he is the helpless tool of the capitalistic system ever gets anywhere. The so-called capitalistic system, defective and unjust as it may be, is the best which civilization after centuries of experience has yet devised to live under. Imperfect as it is, every diligent and ambitious man has a chance under it with ordinary luck to earn and save and make something of himself, to be a self-respecting and, according to his capacity for work and thrift, a prosperous citizen. The basic and conclusive objection to the old-age pension scheme is that it magnifies the state and subordinates the individual, makes the individual think that state owes him something more than security of person and property and the right to a fair chance. The whole principle is wrong, vicious and subversive of the democratic ideal. The hope of the state is wholly in the individual and his recognition of his responsibility and his opportunity.

The College of the Future.

El Paso Times: Dr Alexander Meiklejohn, deposed president of Amherst college, recently made some predictions concerning the college of the future.

Naturally the college of the present does not satisfy Dr. Meiklejohn and he forsees the end of what he calls "control of colleges by outsiders." Control of colleges by men who do not understand the college as does the faculty, has meant a loss of selfrespect and a sense of responsibility to the faculty, he says. Teachers have not been their own masters. They have known that they were subject to the judgment of men who were not experts.

It is an ideal devoutly to be hoped for, that colleges will be directed by men who know what is good for the students. But whether all teachers really know what is for the best interests of the students is problematical. It is also problematical whether the average trustee of a college knows what is for the best interest of the student.

But so long as the trustees control the finances of a college, the professors will teach what the trustees want them to teach.

A man who takes the responsibility upon himself of deciding what to teach the youth, of directing his intelligence and his thought, takes a heavy responsibility. The trouble is that the incompetent does not realize how heavy it is.

Proof of Perfection.

"She's a perfect lady," said the child: "she's all of that."

"Huh! How do you know she's a perfect lady?" questioned her friend. "You've known her only two days."

"It's easy enough tellin'," was the indignant answer. "I know she's a perfect lady because she makes me feel polite all the time."

Three Money Makers.

One said: "My father writes a song in an evening and takes it downtown the next morning and sells it for $25."

The next countered: "My father writes a story in an evening and takes it downtown the next morning and sells it for $50."

"That's nothing," declared the third. "My father gets up in a pulpit on Sunday and talks for half an hour and it takes twelve men to carry the money up to him."

It was reported from Angora, the Turkish capital, that Culleman Sivri Bey, minister of public works, had reconsidered the abrogation of the Chester concessions and will offer further facilities to the Clayton-Kennedy group.

WALT MASON

Poor Judgment.

I overtook a footsore man while driving east by west; I stopped my eager, chooing van, and said, "Get in and rest; you're tired, and it may be a treat to ride in this my barge; so get you in, and rest your feet, and there will be no charge." He rode with me a parasang, and bored me with his talk; I listened to his grim harangue, then said, "Get out and walk. You might have ridden long and far, but when you take your seat you start to criticize my car, which simply can't be beat. You cannot understand, you say, with resive that seems amiss, why any living human ... should buy a boat like this ... right ... or space, and ...

cussed the idle rich and exercised his face. Next day I overtook a skate who asked me for a ride; "This bus," he said, "is up to date," when he had climbed inside. "It is luxury to scoot in such a fine sedan; she is a peach, she is a beaut, and I'm a lucky man." Such language evermore enchants the motor driving guy; I introduced him to my aunts, and fed him full of pie. The man who plies a caustic tongue will never make a hit; his withers by the fates are wrung, his shoes are full of grit.

Domesticating Animals.

Chicago Journal: Civilized man never wearies of boasting of his achievements as compared to those of precivilized times: but in at least one important respect he is a failure and a "piker." Not one of our domestic animals was tamed by men of civilized communities. Without exception they were inherited from socalled barbarian ancestors. Considering the enormous importance of animals as a source of food and power, it would seem that our primitive forbears deserve a great deal more credit than they have received.

Two attempts, indeed, are being made to enlarge man's list of animal servants. The scene of both efforts is Africa. European rulers of that continent have accumulated a herd of young African elephants which have been tamed and broke to work though, up to date, they have not bred in captivity.

A more promising experience is being made by a Britisher named Rattray settled in East Africa. It is not generally known that there are several distinct types of zebra. The most common one, with which all are familiar thru circuses and zoos, is small, rebellious and dies suddenly when submitted to the average training process or called upon to bear a burden. But there is a much larger —Grevy's zebra—less tempermental as well as more powerful, and Rattray has caught and broken to harness a number of these. They also breed in captivity.

The tsetse fly makes it impossible to keep horses or even donkeys over wide areas of Africa, but the zebra is immune to that pest. If Rattray's experiment succeeds it will provide Africa with a much needed work stock.

Handy Tool for the Shop.

A handle made from closed grained wood about twelve inches long with a piece of belting or a strap about eighteen inches long fastened to it by means of wood screws will form a handy tool about the shop for removing lamp rims, radiator and gasoline tank caps, etc. It can also be user for removing the dust caps of metallic universal joints. The tool is used by wrapping the strap around the part and holding the end by pressure on the handle. As the pressure is increased in turning the strap will firmly grip the part without marring it and permit its removal.—Automobile Digest.

MEN AND THINGS

The indignation of most of the senators and political leaders over the oil scandals is not real. The contest is to see which can do the most vigorous denouncing in the hope that by this means their individual political fortunes can be aided or at least preserved. If at the same time they can tear down somebody who stands in their way they will make use of the opportunity, as per Hiram Johnson's general manager in the east. The facts probably are that this public business was attended to about as well as most public business is done and as private business is accomplished, on trust in the honor of others. The number who are corrupt and culpable is small; the real trouble with our public life is the insincerity that exists.

Every now and then we run across an old friend who berates us for having helped put the primary system of nominations on the statute books. He insists that it has greatly deteriorated the caliber of men in public office, and is responsible for the eternal playing of politics that they indulge in. There are times when we feel guilty. The railroads formerly picked our senators and congressmen. They chose able men and these, on matters with which the railroads were not concerned, were free to utilize their talents for the public good. Not being under the necessity of listening to public clamor because they owed their nominations to the select few, they used their best judgment on these other matters and felt no necessity of rising every now and then to emit an assortment of buncombe to tickle the ears of the groundlings.

Nowadays the prescription for running for office is well known. Find out what is most unpopular at the time, denounce it strongly and promise heavily. As a shrewd observer whispered to us the other day: "I would be very positive as to what is wrong if I were running for congress. I would make my remedies vivid and the promises most positive, particularly as a candidate for office, because I would expect my reward before I would have to make good on my promises. I would certainly put at home in Washington today, and I would be able to rely on the other fellows there to see that if my proposals are not particularly sound they are not accepted."

The best help that the socialists have secured in recent months has been furnished by those scientists who say that it will not be so very long until a four-hour working day will be the rule in industry because under improved conditions, in that brief space, men will be able to produce all they need. Of course, it is all guesswork on the part of the scientists, and there is no indication that any of us now in business will ever see it, but it ought to have the same strong appeal to the shiftless and the dreamers that the promises of socialism has so often had.

Human experience has taught very clearly that if people desire success and happiness in this world—that is, as large a measure of them as is possible—they will find the recipe to be very simple. It is, behave yourself. Business hasn't yet rid itself of the lurking suspicion in the minds of so many engaged in it that trickery and false representation are necessary, but the big successes are made by men who follow straightforward courses. In our social relations the value of good behavior is even more apparent. Treat other people as you wish to be treated yourself. This is old stuff, but it also possesses the virtue of being always new because so little used.

Men pursue many absurd and futile tasks but the climax along these lines has been reached by the fellow who has undertaken to rewrite the gospels in the modern form of composition. We have read some of his productions. There is a reverent air about what he has written that is creditable to his pretensions, and there is an entire absence of any effort to change the sense of the meaning, but as a piece of writing it does not compare in majesty or impressiveness with the original. It is dull and lifeless alongside the other. The story of Christ was told so well in the original that it requires a vast egotism in any writer to imagine he can improve upon it. Having been told well, what reason can a man have for spending his time in trying to tell it better, when so much other matter remains unwritten?

"There's nothin' unusual in borrowin' chairs an' dishes fer a party but when they ask t' borrow one's bootlegger things are goin' purty fer," said Tell Rinkley today. "Th' servant problem gits worse'n worse, 'specially th' public servant problem.

BRAIN TESTS

1 Minute to Answer This.

A fabulist tells of a hungry wolf, who seeing a fat little goat sleeping on a roof top, resolved to capture a meal by impersonating a policeman who would accurse the youngster of throwing snowballs at him, and of having butted him on a previous occasion.

"How could I throw snowballs at you in July, when there is no snow?" said the trembling kid as he came down from the roof. "Moreover, I have been asleep for an hour and never dreamed of such a thing, and I am not the kind of a kid to toss coppers."

"You offer an ingenious equivocation place of a straight denial, and I despise a person who puns," replied the cruel wolf as he seized his victim. "To pelt a cop with snowballs is only a misdemeanor, and would have only cost you your pelt in return, but out of your mouth you are now convicted of a heinous crime, and I will have to take you in!" Which he proceeded to do. Of course, the moral of this true tale is that it is folly to come down to argue with a cop, but who can tell the nature of the serious charge against that poor little kid?
